Imari Aaltonan Dies from Heart Attack at Night

Imari Aaltonan was found dead in his room at 83 Third Avenue on Sunday morning. Another roomer in the house passing the partly open door of Room No. 6 noticed the body lying on the floor. The police were notified at once and Coroner Dr. H. L. Minthorn was called. The coroner found that the death had taken place in the night or early morning and was due to a heart attack. Apparently Mr. Aaltonan had suffered a heart attack in bed and in attempting to rise had fallen to the floor. Dr. Minthorn decided that the cause of death was so evident that no inquest was necessary.
The late Imari Aaltonan was born in Finland and was 48 years old at the time of death. He came to Canada in 1927, his wife and daughter still residing in Finland. He has one brother, Eino, resident in Timmins, and one sister, Mrs. Alma Passi, also living here. Sergeant Archambault and Constable Mainville investigated the death.
The late Mr. Aaltonan recently was working at the Woollings Lumber Co. camp at Connaught, but was on a holiday at the time of his death. He always stopped at 88 Third Avenue when in town.

Wedding Event of Evelyn Yake and Lieut. Rhodri Neame

Lovely Ceremony at St. Matthew's Church.
Fresh potted flowers decorated St. Matthew's church yesterday afternoon for the wedding at a quarter to three, of Evelyn Kathleen Yake, daughter of Mr. Barton Yake and the late Mrs. Yake, of Toronto, to Lieut. Helpful Hints on Flowers and Gardens

The Savoy cabbage is the most delicately flavoured of all cabbages and, as such, deserves a place in every Victory garden. Their cultivation offers no particular problems, but it is well to spray or dust them with Derris Dust, Slug Shot, Pyrethrum, Arsenate of Lead, or whatever else you favor in the line of insect exterminators, since the cabbage worm is inordinately fond of Savoy; because of their superior flavor, no doubt. Worms and caterpillars are very discerning in this respect. We will discuss the various methods used in combatting them when they arrive. The Savoy cabbage is the one with the deep green, crinkly outer leaves enclosing a tender, light green heart. They mature fairly late in the Fall and will keep all winter.
Broccoli differs from cauliflower inasmuch as the unopened bud, the thick, succulent central stem and tender side shoots are the edible part of the plant. It will often grow where the latter does not thrive. Both are cool weather plants and as the climate is rarely excessively hot in this district and rainfall is plentiful they have a lot in their favor. No two vegetables will give you a greater return for your labour in a small garden. Unlike cauliflower, broccoli will continue to bud after the first cutting and will persist with increasing vigor until the ground freezes hard. The buds are cut before they show color.
When plants that have been started in seed boxes are moved from the hot bed or cold frame into the garden every precaution should be taken to help them recover from the shock of transplanting with a minimum of set-back. To ensure a quick recovery mix a tablespoonful of fertilizer, or a small quantity of barn yard manure, with the earth in the hole prepared for the new plant, soak this with water and cover with fresh earth to the depth of an inch or so, so that the roots of the plant do not come into immediate contact with the fertilizer. Set the plant in the hole and fill with earth, pressing the earth around the roots firmly, leaving no air spaces. After the plant is set water freely. Leave a slight depression around the stem to collect and hold moisture.

It is customary to dip Gladiolus bulbs before planting, to guard against attacks from thrips or wireworms. Many growers use a solution made up of one quarter of an ounce of corrosive sublimate dissolved in a gallon and a half of water, peeling the bulbs, or corms, to give them their correct name, and soaking them in this solution for three hours, keeping the solution at a temperature of approximately seventy degrees Fahrenheit. This solution by the way, is an effective remedy to use against root maggot. Four a little into the ground before setting out young cabbage plants, cauliflower, larkspur, godetia; and, later, around the roots if they show signs of becoming infected. Cabbage and cauliflower plants fall easy victims to root maggot if they are not treated before they are well established. You can, if you like, dip the roots in the solution before planting.
Plants attacked by root maggot collapse suddenly. Inspection will show that the root has been almost entirely denuded of fibre, leaving only a bare stump. Prompt application of corrosive sublimate will save the rest of your plants, but it is better to take preventive measures beforehand.

Thanks from Old and Very Young for Jam Given Overseas

Gratitude to Timmins from Forty Between 76 and 99, and 60 Children.
The people of Timmins will be particularly touched by two letters recently received by Mrs. H. R. Channen, Secretary of the Timmins Branch of the Red Cross. By odd coincidence, the two letters represent the thanks of the very young and the very old for help in time of need. The letters are in acknowledgment of money sent to headquarters in 1942 and 1943 to purchase jam for bombed-out victims in Britain. The one letter represents small children (60 of them) and the other, old people (40 of them) whose ages range from 76 to 99 years. While the people of Timmins and district are always ready to help anyone there will seem to be a special delight in knowing that money from here has helped the very young or the very old, those least able to help themselves. In feeling this satisfaction, it should not be forgotten that it is this chivalrous form of help and service that is the specialty of the Red Cross, and that every dollar given the Red Cross means a dollar of which the donors may always feel proud.

Former Sports Editor Reported Missing Overseas

F.O. Hugh ("Pat") Murphy Had Half of His 100 Operational Hours to His Credit.
Hosts of friends in Timmins and district will regret to learn that Flying Officer Hugh ("Pat") Murphy is reported as missing overseas after operational flight over enemy territory. Word to this effect was received this week by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Murphy, Falconbridge, Ont. All will eagerly await further news and sincerely hope that he has made a safe landing. Flying Officer Hugh Murphy (more familiarly known to wide circles here as "Pat") was for several years on The Advance staff as sports editor and general reporter, coming here first in 1937, and going to Toronto the next year where he was one of the editors on a new weekly journal there. He returned to The Advance in the latter part of 1938, leaving here a couple of years later for Falconbridge where he was on the staff of the Falconbridge Nickel Company until his enlistment in the R.C.A.F. in 1942. He has been overseas since June of last year, and recently completed half of his operational tour of 100 hours as bombardier in a Lancaster bomber. He has taken part in most of the big raids over the continent in recent months and with the luck and the pluck of the Irish has always turned up safe, and all will hope to hear soon that this time is another case when he will eventually arrive with his genial Irish smile.

Arthur Hugh Murphy was born in Orillia some twenty-nine years ago, and attended both public school and college there. On his graduation he went on the staff of The Orillia Packet and Times, later joining the Canadian Press staff in Toronto, coming from that position to The Advance, where he made many friends. A brother of Pat's, Flying Officer Jack Murphy, is also in the R. C. A. F., and last September was awarded the D.F.C. for outstanding bomb-aiming and meritorious conduct. Another brother Sapper F. J. Murphy, is with the Royal Canadian Engineers overseas.

In a recent letter home, F. C. Hugh Mrs. C. Kadour, Wilson avenue,—a Murphy said: "I sure am thrilled that daughter (Marie Madeleine Helene).

Although the food situation here has never been serious, the ration of jam has seemed small to boys whose capacity bears no relation to their size! They agreed that the raspberry jam was just like "home-made" and they have all thoroughly enjoyed it.
We appreciate your generosity and share what must be your sentiments too, that the children shall suffer as little as possible during wartime.
Again thanking you,
Yours very sincerely,
H. G. Warren, Housemaster;
L. Warren, Matron.
