Nearly 5,000 in the Corpus Christi Procession Sunday

Impressive and Colourful Religious Ceremony Observed in Timmings.

Some 5,000 people took part in the Corpus Christi procession here on Sunday evening. In addition the streets and walks along the line of march was thronged with other thousands watching the ceremony. Many business places and houses and the separate schools were decorated for the occasion while there were symbolic arches on some of the streets for the passing through of the procession. The impressive procession left the Notre Dame de Lourdes Church about eight o'clock Sunday evening. Preceding the procession proper went a group of little girls gowned in "robes of spotless white," and in other attractive colours, with appropriate headdresses and wearing wings to represent a band of angels. These little girls proceeded to the High School grounds where an altar and repository had been erected. The little girls took places along the steps to the altar, the latter being beautifully adorned for the event by the ladies of the parish of Notre Dame de Lourdes.

Carrying the Blessed Sacrament under a gold canopy was Rev. Fr. Theriault, with Rev. Fr. Gaboury as deacon, and Rev. Fr. Maccabee as sub-deacon. The procession included members of the clergy of Notre Dame de Lourdes Church and the other churches in the town and district, La Federation des Femmes Canadiennes Francaise, La Ligue Catholique Femmes, members of the Sacred Heart, members of the Crusaders, Boy Scouts, Girl Guides, and members of other Catholic churches in the town and district.

Music for the occasion was provided by members of the Gold Belt Band. Various banners and symbols carried added to the interest and attraction of the procession. The service and ceremonies at the altar were very impressive. Special prayers were offered for victory and peace.

Witness Gave Some Colour to One Case in Court on Tuesday

Over Thirty Cases at Police Court This Week, but Most of Them Drab.

There were over thirty cases at police court on Tuesday, but only one had much colour of interest, and that was due not so much to the case itself as to the attitude of one witness. This case was a charge against Felix Derouin of doing wilful damage to the property of John Jones, prospector and miner. The alleged damage was the smashing of a stove and throwing it outside the Jones cabin in Eldorado Township. Mr. Jones gave evidence as to the ownership of the stove and its value as being about $25.00. The stove had been broken up and thrown outside and the cabin nailed up. He did not see anyone doing the damage, but his one witness did. The witness told the court in very emphatic way that the accused did the damage. He did not see the damage done. "But I heard it," he insisted, adding that it must have been the accused because there wasn't anybody else within miles. Mr. Derouin took the stand in his own behalf, and said that he had not touched the stove or done any other damage. When Mr. Greg. Evans, counsel for the defence was questioning Mr. Derouin the afore said witness interrupted and was escorted from the courtroom. Magistrate Atkinson dismissed the case, agreeing with counsel for the defence that there was not evidence to convict the accused of the charge.

Another case that had little interest, but does teach a lesson, is referred to elsewhere in this issue. It concerns a man who was sent to jail for three months for failing to obey the orders of the court for payments for the maintenance of his children. Joseph St. Pierre was given 15 days for driving a car while drunk. He was seen by police driving his car on and off the sidewalk. His driving license was suspended for six months and his car impounded for three months. Herminigilde Lachance charged with receiving stolen goods, was bound over in the sum of $50.00 to keep the peace for a year, and the razor it was charged had been stolen was ordered returned to its owner. Lachance claimed that the razor had been left at his place apparently to be sharpened and he had kept it till the owner would call for it. The owner positively identified the razor by certain marks on it. The magistrate pointed out certain discrepancies in the evidence of Lachance and added that there was no doubt as to the ownership of the razor. Joseph Belanger, charged with selling rationed foods for coupons prior to the valid date of the coupons, pleaded guilty, but his solicitor Greg. Evans explained that while he was technically guilty, he had not broken the spirit of the law. All he had done was accept coupons from farmers who could not get in town often. He was holding the coupons until they were due. When the Wartime Prices and Trade Board visited his store the coupons had only a day to run. Mr. Evans asked for the minimum penalty as the breach of the law was only technical. A fine of $100.00 and costs was imposed. Rene Serre was charged with breaking and entering the store of Mrs. A. Lapointe in Mountjoy township. The broken door was exhibited in court and Mrs. Lapointe told of seeing the accused at the time of the breaking of the door. She admitted that there was another man there, too, but said that she was sure he stayed in the car that Serre was driving. Serre denied breaking the door and said he had seen another man there who might have broken it. The case was dismissed.

There was another charge against Serre—that of failing to report an accident. In this accident fence poles were smashed, a hydro pole knocked down and other damage done. The accident put the local radio station off the air for some hours, but Serre did not get any rebate for that. He pleaded guilty to this charge and was fined $50 and costs. Lorenzo Veilleux, for breach of the Selective Service Mobilization regulations was given one day in jail, after which he is to be taken to North Bay for the Army tests. Joseph Fournier, 161 A Cedar North, who refused to admit officers on a liquor search, was charged with obstructing the police and fined $100.00 and costs. Lauchie Dante MacDonald, charged with obstructing the police at 163 Spruce South, was fined $100.00 and costs or three months. He was said to have put up quite a battle with the police but lost out in the end. He started to serve the term this week.

Three improper parkings cost $1.00 each and costs and there was the same penalty in each of three cases of failing to stop at stop signs.

Four in the front seat of an ancient Ford was assessed at $10.00 and costs. The same fee was imposed on another motorist for having no operator's license. Speeding over 30 miles was charged $10.00 and costs, while for over 40 the rate was $15.00 and costs. Three drunks each paid $10.00 and costs, as did also an interdicted person for consuming. Having a bottle of beer cost $10.00 and costs, while the tax for having part of a bottle of liquor was $15.00 and costs.

Three Months for Failing to Obey Order of Court

Joseph Charlebois Did Not Keep Up Payments for Maintenance of Children.

At police court here on Tuesday Joseph Charlebois was given three months in jail if arrears for maintenance of his children were not paid forthwith. The man had been in court several times recently in regard to paying for the maintenance of his children and a court order having been issued to him to pay so much a week, he was at court last week to show cause for failing to obey this order. Last week the case was remanded but when he seemed to be no more inclined to pay the amount this week, the magistrate gave him the alternative of paying the amount at once or going to jail. It would be well for all who may think they can evade an order like this to note this case, remembering that when the jail term is served the order will stand and if arrangements are not made to obey the order the accused will be liable to another term or several terms in jail. These cases are not frequent, but it is well for any obstinate or perverse party to note that some years ago an Iroquois Falls or Ansonville man went to jail on three successive occasions in a vain effort to evade one of these orders and in the end after keeping himself in jail for several months he had to meet the order after it all.

Helpful Hints on Flowers and Gardens

As the season advances we must expect an increase in garden pests. Be prepared to extend the hand of welcome early, and let it hold a spray gun. It is not wise to wait until damage is done before applying preventive treatment. For effective work a good sprayer is necessary; one that will hold at least a quart of solution and spread it far and wide in the shortest space of time. A cheap, ineffective sprayer is discouraging to the user and is soon worn out. There is, even before this goes to press, signs of the cuckoo spit or spit bug, if you must have it that way. The spit bug generally hides itself very discreetly on the underside of a leaf or at the junction of stem and stalk and it must be looked for. It further conceals itself in a ball of frothy matter from which it derives its rather inelegant appellation, although it is quite descriptive. Enclosed in this ball of froth is a tiny yellow insect that fattens off the juices of the plant. The spit bug can be brushed off with the fingers and destroyed; a messy operation, not to say a tiresome one if they are very numerous. Spray with a solution of nicotine sulphate; one half-teaspoonful of nicotine sulphate to a quart of water, adding a few chips of mild soap to the mixture to make it stick. Nicotine sulphate kills by contact and is intended for use against tender skinned insects that live by sucking; it must, therefore, be sprayed directly on the insect to get results. The spit bug is not easily detected unless looked for carefully, but they can do an infinite amount of damage in the border if they are not dealt with promptly. The first sign of their presence is twisted, contorted foliage. The damage, however, goes far deeper than that and if neglected it may become almost irreparable. Watch for this among the young annuals, although the spit bug does not confine itself to the annuals alone. The first spraying should clear the plants but it is advisable to spray more than once to destroy successive batches. The cut-worm seems to be a little ahead of the season in development and activity; due to the hot spell that we had in May, no doubt. Most gardeners are so well acquainted with the cut-worm that some of them would probably give up gardening entirely if he ceased to exist, although, to be sure, he is more elusive than a sociable. Contrary to the habits of most caterpillars, the cut-worm feeds only at night, keeping itself under cover a couple of inches below the surface of the soil during the daytime, near the stem of a plant that it has designs on, usually. No insect is more industrious. Cut-worms attack all garden plants particularly those that are young and succulent and its first step is to cut the plant off close to the ground so that it is entirely destroyed. It grows to a length of an inch or an inch and a half when mature, is dark brown, almost black in color, with a tough, leathery skin. A simple means of control is to moisten one quart of bran with water until it is crumbly to the touch, not sodden. To the moistened bran add one table-

Miss D. Wilkins Honoured by Guides at South Porcupine

Also by District Guides and at High School.

South Porcupine, June 14th. Special To The Advance.

Miss Dorothy Wilkins, who, for the past eight years has been on the staff of our High School will not be returning to our town after the summer holidays. She has accepted a position as Modern Languages Specialist at Oshawa Collegiate and Vocational Institute, and will be leaving South Porcupine on July 4th to take a summer course at Laval University, Quebec.

Miss Wilkins has been an excellent teacher of French and Physical Culture in our High School and is held in high esteem by the Board and pupils of the school. She will be missed very much in the school and in various circles outside of the scholastic. She has given a great deal of her time to the Girl Guide movement during her eight years' community service and on Wednesday last the local South Porcupine Company of Girl Guides under the command of Capt. Clawworthy, invited her to a special party at their hall and presented her with a cup and saucer of Crown Derby as a parting gift. The District Guides (of which Miss Wilkins is C.O.) held a special Guide Rally on Wednesday last in the Hollinger Hall in Timmings at which Miss Wilkins was guest of honour. Mrs. L. Sharp of Hallinor (President of the local Girl Guides' Association) was present, and Joyce Rogers (South Porcupine Guide), with representatives from each Girl Guide Company in the Porcupine Camp, acting for the Guides presented Miss Wilkins with a tea service of Crown Derby china. Miss Wilkins was much touched and pleased with this lovely gift, and replied feelingly to the little address given.

At school on Friday afternoon, June 9th, the Students' Council presented a gift of a Sheffield reproduction silver cake plate to Miss Wilkins. Mary Reshertaski making the presentation. Mr. Ellis (principal) expressed the regrets of the staff and students upon losing Miss Wilkins from the staff, and voiced his appreciation of her services.

Miss Wilkins in "Blue and Gold"—the High School paper—writes the following farewell (excerpt):—"When I first came here we worked hard to celebrate the coronation of our present king. Since that time we have put aside the pleasures of peace for the sterner duties of war and I have seen some gay and sprightly first formers leave in a few years to play important roles in the greatest struggle of history. Others have grown into wise fifth formers and one of my former pupils is now teaching you. "I wish you success and true happiness in the future. May all your loved ones return safely to you and for those who do not return, may we all be worthy in some measure, of their sacrifice. "Once again my best wishes to you all and "que dieu vous benisse."

Moosonee Diocesan W.A. Board Meets at Iroquois Falls

Mrs. W. H. Johns, South Porcupine, President.

South Porcupine, June 14th. Special To The Advance.

The thirty-sixth annual meeting of the Moosonee Diocesan W.A. Board of spoon of molasses and stir until well mixed. Add one teaspoonful of paris green and stir again until the mixture is tinted green throughout. Scatter this mash lightly among your plants. The mash is best applied just before dusk on a warm evening, just as the cut-worm is coming to life. Never apply in the day time as the mash soon dries out and loses attractiveness. There are alternative remedies for combating the cut-worm recommended by various home gardeners, but short of placing your cut-worm on a block of wood and hitting him with a mallet there is no remedy as effective as the one outlined above.

Christian Science Church Holds Annual Meeting

Last week the annual meeting of the First Church of Christ, Scientist, was held at Boston, Mass. On account of the wartime restrictions the attendance was largely restricted to a more local character than in past years, but there was a representative gathering, the audience numbering several thousand. The new president, Paul Stark Seeley, of Cambridge, Mass., pointed out that in the past 50 years the Christian Science movement had grown from less than 100-branch churches in two countries to nearly 2,900 to-day in 54 countries. During the session it was made very clear that the Christian Scientists are wholly behind the war effort, believing that it is essentially a religious struggle to assure the "four freedoms" to mankind. Reference was made to certain legislation proposed to-day (health plans being one) that might encroach on one of the four freedoms, the freedom of worship. The various reports showed the church making excellent progress, despite wartime difficulties.

The report of the Camp Welfare Activities showed that 2,000 War Relief Committees in Christian Science branch churches and societies in the United States and Canada are sending clothing in considerable quantities to Great Britain, Russia, Malta and Greece, and that 145 Wartime Officialing Ministers are at work in the field for the movement, along with 428 volunteer Christian Science Wartime Workers.
