Try The Advance Want Advt.

TEN YEARS AGO IN TIMMINS
From data in the Porcupine Advance Files

Ten years ago the Kiwanis Club regular meeting on Monday, March 18th, was as close as the club could get to celebrating the "17th of Ould Oireland."

John Dubeau had the distinction ten years ago of having two fires in his house at 154 Mountjoy street within a few hours. The first fire started apparently from defective wiring, and when the firemen had this apparently extinguished, they advised Mr. Dubeau to remain on watch for an hour or so in case there was some smouldering spot that had been missed by the chemical Mr. Dubeau watched for about an hour and then left. Shortly after he left, flames were noticed by a passer-by who called the brigade. The double fire caused a loss of $1,000, covered by insurance.

There was sincere sympathy for the family ten years ago in the death of Kempville, Ont., of Miss Margaret McKay, daughter of W. M. McKay, of Schumacher. She was born at the Dome Mines in 1914, and was popular in the Porcupine district, having attended Timmins High School, where she carried off the gold medal for highest standing. She was attending college in Toronto when her mother died. She then came home to keep house for her father. At the time of death she was on a brief holiday visit to the East.

"My Irish Rose," a play presented by the C. W. L. of South Porcupine ten years ago, made a big hit at South End. Miss Teresa Burns was the director and was given great praise for the excellent way in which the play was produced.

Another Irish play making a big hit here was "The Rale McCoy," given by the Nativity Dramatic Guild. Among those taking part were—Pat Larmer, Charles Yates, Helen Paolini, Anne Belec, Dr. J. Martin, Michael Sloan did a step dance to the music of Wilfred Lebrun. Miss Margaret Easton brought down the house with her real Irish clog dance, with Pat Quinn at the piano. The overture was a piano and violin duet by Mary Quinn and Cecile Gagnon. Father McManus, as president of the Guild, directed the production.

One of the big features in the way of high class entertainment ten years ago was the concert given by the United Church Choir. Both choir and orchestra were excellent. Among the choral numbers was "Annie Laurie," in which Wilson Thomson took the solo part. This selection was given very special encore. Mrs. P. H. Carson delighted the audience with her presentation of the vocal solo, "Only a Rose." Mr. Michael Rose, leader of choir and orchestra, favoured with a violin solo, and Willie Popischel gave a cello solo. Several references have been made in this column to the many men dismissed from the provincial service by the Hepburn Government. In the issue of March 21st, The Advance had a better sort of news—Alex Stirling had been re-instated as road inspector for this part of the North and local Liberals assured The Advance that hereafter there was to be no politics in Northern Development, but that everything was to go on merit and everybody was to stay on merit alone.

The banquet given by the Porcupine Credit Association in the Empire hotel on March 21st, 1935, was a most interesting event. The chief speaker for the evening was Mr. Clark, Northern Ontario representative for the Heinz Co. P. H. Laporte also may be classed as an outstanding speaker for the occasion, many valuable pointers being given in his address. Others speaking briefly were—Mayor R. Richardson, J. P. Lynch, Councillor Chateauvert, Dr. Honey, Mr. Finkelmann, W. H. Burns, G. A. Macdonald, Frank Feldman, A. R. Harkness, Pat Murphy, A. Caron, Joseph Main, Dr. McKenna, Miss Helen Abrahamson, G. Biondi, D. Laprairie, Jas. D. Campbell. Music for the evening was by Billy Brown's orchestra.

The commencement exercises at South Porcupine High School ten years ago won very special notice in The Advance. One particular feature was an oratorical contest among the pupils. The addresses by the contestants were unusually well done. Guest speaker for the evening was Dr. G. Rogers, head inspector of Secondary schools in the province.

Dr. Rogers was also the guest speaker at the formal opening of Schumacher High School ten years ago. He complimented Schumacher on its new high school, "I don't think there is anything finer in the province," he was quoted as saying.

Among the local and personal items in The Advance ten years ago were the following:—"Mrs. J. Thomas has returned from a trip to Toronto and other points south." "Thelma Burke, who was operated on recently at St. Mary's hospital for appendicitis, is now well on the way to complete recovery." "Dr. McInnis left yesterday for Toronto to confer with government officials on a number of matters pertaining to health problems in the North and to the Workmen's Compensation Board." "Harry Hogarth, of Port Arthur, has been visiting his brother, W. L. Hogarth, who is ill at present. Harry Hogarth was in Timmins as early as 1909, but until this visit has not been back here since those early days. He sees a wonderful growth in the town." "Married—At Schumacher, on March 9th, 1935, by Rev. Murray C. Tait, Miss Elizabeth B. Colborne, second daughter of Mrs. Colborne and the late Mr. Edward Colborne, to Mr. Elwood Earl McCuaig, son of Mr. Alex. McCuaig, of Midland, Ont. "Their many friends will extend the sincerest sympathy to Mr. and Mrs. W. K. Wylie, of Schumacher, in the death of their little son, William Paul Wylie, who died this morning. The baby was born on Sunday and died early to-day (Monday). The body is being taken to Brantford for burial."

Special Canoe Trip Available for Temagami Tourists

Tourists Now Able to Plan Trips and Have Costs Included in Tickets

North Bay, Mar. 21.—Special canoe trips down the Temagami lakes will be made available to tourists visiting this famous resort region, as soon as conditions permit, Col. C. E. Reynolds, chairman of the T. and N. O. Railway Commission, announced today. These canoe jaunts will be of a flexible nature and may last for anywhere from two days to four weeks depending on the desire of the tourist.

"All transportation expenses in connection with the entire trip will be included in the price of the ticket the vacationist buys in his home town. In other words a man in Detroit, planning to come to Temagami, can include the canoe trip in his plans and know before he starts exactly what the whole trip is going to cost."

These special tickets, soon to be available, will not, however, include the cost of providing fishing tackle and other necessities for the canoe trip such as food. They will, however, include the cost of a guide and the providing of canoes.

The T. and N. O. Commission announced some time ago plans for the formation of a specially-trained corps of guides, who will be recruited from the ranks of returning servicemen.

"Outfitters in the Temagami area need not fear we plan to compete with them," Col. Reynolds said today. "The sale of fishing equipment, food etc., does not interest us. In fact we will be happy to co-operate with outfitters by using T. and N. O. publicity pamphlets to outline for the public what Temagami outfitters have available for purchase."

Prisoners-of-War Appreciate Help of Canadian Red Cross

Food Parcels from Red Cross Mean Life to Men in Prison Camps

(By J. E. Thompson)
(Captain J. E. Thompson was wounded and captured at Dieppe in August of 1942 and was repatriated to Canada last September. He has written three articles, of which this is the third, dealing with educational facilities available to Canadian prisoners by the Canadian Legion Educational Services)

He spoke, read and wrote English, French, German and Chinese before he was captured at Dunkirk in June, 1940. Today, in prisoner-of-war Oflag IX A-Z, Rotenberg-on-Pulda, Germany, this officer has polished up his knowledge of these three foreign languages and has learned to speak, to read and write new ones—Spanish and Russian.

A Canadian Army Major from Toronto and a Captain from Winnipeg, both prisoners-of-war in Oflag VII B, near Munich, are writing theses to obtain degrees as Doctors of Philosophy in Education and English. A Winnipeg Flight-Sergeant in Stalag 363 has completed five matriculation examinations and has embarked on law studies leading to the degree of Bachelor of Law, which he will complete at the government's expense when he returns to Canada. A Saskatchewan N. C. O. in Stalag IX C is so far advanced in his agricultural studies that his father has bought him a farm which he will run when he comes home.

These are typical examples of what British prisoners-of-war have accomplished during their captivity and—more particularly—what Canadians have achieved since the Canadian Legion inaugurated its educational services for prisoners-of-war.

Started on a small scale in 1941, the Canadian Legion service grew until, in March, 1943, a meeting of representative of the Comité International Croix-Rouge, the Canadian Red Cross, British Red Cross, Y. M. C. A., the Canadian Legion Educational Services and other organizations decided the C. L. E. S. should operate a depot at Geneva, Switzerland, with the aid of the C. I. C. R., to handle requests for books and to supply demands from prison camps and hospitals. Later, arrangements were made with Canadian universities and provincial departments of education to grant prisoners-of-war pro tanto credits for examinations written in Germany under supervision of other prisoners especially appointed for this purpose.

The granting of elementary, high school, university and professional school pro tanto credits for examinations written in Germany was the most substantial feat accomplished in educational fields for prisoners-of-war. Previously, prisoners had been able to study, but could not earn educational credits for their work.

Some indication of the response to this offer made by Canadian prisoners-of-war in Germany has been suggested in previous articles of this series. But the scope of the prisoner-of-war services provided by the Canadian Legion Educational Services can best be appreciated by C.L.E.S. statistics up to December 1944.

At that date, 57,674 textbooks had been sent by the C.L.E.S. to prison camps or to the depot at Geneva; 34,612 textbooks had been sent to individual prisoners; 804 prisoners had been supplied with university courses, and 660 reference books had been sent. In addition, C.L.E.S. had sent prisoners 629,000 other books and pamphlets, and 230,000 trade journals and special benefit the northern mining municipalities and the mining industry as a whole."

These special canoe trips, Col. Reynolds said, were being introduced as a means of attracting more vacationists to the Temagami district and would, he hoped, bring a greater measure of prosperity to the region.

Premier Drew Gives Assurance of Study of Mines Taxation

Admits Handicaps to the Mining Municipalities of the North

Previous references in The Advance have suggested that the present Ontario Government realizes the unfortunate position of the Northern mining municipalities in regard to taxation, and that the Government plans to do something about it. Some weeks ago a delegation from the Northern mining municipalities interviewed Premier Drew and members of his cabinet and placed the complete situation before them. The delegation was favourably received and came away with high hopes that at long last something might be done to give the municipalities a square deal. Mrs. Ann Shipley, reeve of Teck township Kirkland Lake, was spokesman for the delegation, and reports say that her presentation of the case was a very able one. Mayor Brunette, of Timmins, another member of the delegation, which included representatives from all mining municipalities usually including the reeve or mayor and the town clerk treasurer of each mining municipality. Since then Timmins has heard from the Premier and other members of the cabinet in the matter, but nothing definite has been received for publication. In this connection the following from the last issue of The Northern News of Kirkland Lake will be of interest here:—

"A satisfactory solution of the problems confronting the Northern Mining municipalities is being sought by Premier G. Drew. Teck Township Council has been advised by letter recently received by Reeve Ann Shipley from Colonel Drew.

"In a letter to Reeve Shipley, and tabled at Monday night's council meeting, Premier Drew stated: "I was very glad to have the chance to hear the opinions of the representatives of the Mining Municipalities of Northern Ontario.

"While it is impossible to tell you what procedure will be followed until the budget has been presented to the legislature, it is my hope that the problems will be disposed of to your satisfaction when Mr. Frost announces his decision.

"It is our desire to do everything we can to remove the handicaps imposed by the present system of taxation and we are hopeful of finding a satisfactory solution."

"While council made little comment on the premier's letter it is a significant admission that the present system of taxation does present handicaps to the mining municipalities. It is the first occasion on which a premier of the province has written to the council of any of the mining municipalities, has stated there are handicaps confronting the municipalities of the north that do not face municipalities in the older centres of the south, and has frankly stated his intention of seeking a solution of the problems the mining areas must face.

be in line with the Commission's recent purchase of the Temagami Navigation Ltd., which offers excellent boat transportation down the Temagami lakes. The Commission will not only offer a vastly improved boat service this summer but has undertaken substantial improvements to the Temagami waterfront and will, shortly, begin construction of several modern new buildings including a navigation office. This ultra-modern structure will offer not only comfortable rest facilities for passengers awaiting boat service down the lakes, but also a fully-equipped lunch-room.

There had been, Col. Reynolds said, opposition to the establishment of a restaurant at the Temagami docks and he was anxious to make it known that the Commission had no desire to enter into general competition with other eating places in Temagami. "We feel it is our responsibility," he said, "to provide eating and sleeping accommodation for T. and N. O. passengers until they are delivered to their destination. We feed them on the trains and will feed them on the boats. We consider it part of our obligation to provide proper eating facilities also at the docks where some passengers may have to spend time while waiting for a train or boat."

Re-opening of restaurant facilities at the Temagami station was contemplated, Col. Reynolds said, but this plan was abandoned when officials decided T. and N. O. rail and bus passengers as well as persons using boats of the Temagami Navigation Ltd. could best be accommodated by a lunch-room located on the second floor of the new office building on the docks.

"I want to make it quite clear," concluded Col. Reynolds, "that we are not now interested in the hotel and general restaurant business but must, of necessity, provide such services to our passengers while they are in transit. We intend to provide maximum comfort for such persons at all times. I see no reason why anybody should object to that."
