Fifteen Nazi Subs Surrender to Five Canadian Frigates
 Able Seaman Newsham, of Timmins, and Stoker Tomick, of Schumacher, on Frigates Concerned
 There was general interest last week in the news that fifteen Nazi submarines had surrendered to five Canadian frigates. The frigates made the "capture" off the coast of Norway, and took the captured U-boats to a port in Scotland. There will be a double interest in the incident because some local men were among the crews of the Canadian frigates. Able Seaman Newsham is with the St. Pierre. Another local man in the "capture" incident was Stoker Tomick, of Schumacher.
 Able Seaman Newsham, who is a son of Mrs. Carl Briggs, 19 Commercial avenue, is a local lad of whom the district is especially proud. As soon as he was old enough he joined the Canadian Navy and has been close to steady active service ever since.
FIVE CAPTURE FIFTEEN
 The following is the despatch last week in regard to the part played by the five Canadian frigates:—
 Lock Eriboll, Scotland — Fifteen German submarines, escorted by the five Canadian frigates which "captured" them off the coast of Norway shortly after Germany surrendered May 7th, have arrived at this picturesque port on the north coast of Scotland after a 500-mile journey.
 Also taken into custody was the commander of the U-boat flotilla, a Capt. Suhren, who wore the Iron Cross with Oak Leaves and said he was senior submarine officer on the Arctic Ocean and Barents Sea.
 The U-boats were intercepted in the company of a German submarine depot ship and four merchant vessels. The enemy surface craft were ordered to steam for a Norwegian port, while the Canadian ships—Matane, Lock Alvin, Monnow, Niina and St. Pierre—took up escort positions around the U-boats.
OFF NORWAY COAST
 The frigates, operating with a unit of the Home Fleet, were escorting a convoy to Murmansk when ordered to intercept a group of U-boats reported travelling south along the Norwegian coast.
 "Our information was vague, but we opened up speed and covered about 270 miles before intercepting them," said Lieut. F. J. Jones, of Montreal, commanding officer of the Matane.
 "We could hardly contain ourselves when we sighted them about a mile off. We were at action stations and ready to blast them out of the water. We signalled the depot ship and ordered all vessels to shut down their engines."
 The Matane's executive officer, Lieut. J. J. Coates, of Halifax; Petty Officer Edwin Massey, of Verdun, Que., and Sgmn. William Parish, of Port Arthur, Ont., boarded the German depot ship to accept the surrender. There they met Suhren, who said under orders of the German High Command he was withdrawing his command from Narvik and proceeding to Trondheim.
 Suhren added he would comply

 Round and square dancing were the features of the evening. Prizes were awarded the step dancing and jitterbugging competitions.

with Allied surrender terms, said ammunition had been landed, that the German vessels carried no mines and that torpedoes had been rendered harmless.
HUNS WARNED
 "We warned them if they attempted to scuttle or submerge they would be destroyed and no mercy would be shown," Coates said.
 As they neared the end of the trip, the Nine intercepted a signal that the U-278 attempted to pass secretly to the other submarines. It read: "Comrades, nearing England We have to carry out a mission and obey the law of these people. We have to obey the orders of our Fuehrer and take a bite out of the sour apple. The weapons of our U-boats are out of commission. We only have to carry out this last mission of turning over our U-boats."

LES HORNICK
 Progressive Conservative Candidate
 RIDING IN South Cochrane

When Leslie Edward Hornick accepted the Progressive-Conservative nomination at an enthusiastic party convention in Matheson several weeks ago he was only fulfilling an obligation to the people with whom he has lived and for whom he has worked during the last 14 years. This was his opportunity to make a real contribution to the welfare and happiness of his fellow citizens in a wider sphere of public service.
 For two years he had served with distinction as a member of the Teck Township Council, topping the polls in each election. In recognition of his wide public endorsement, he was appointed chairman of the community's first police commission, a difficult task which he executed with fearless determination.
 Retiring from public life, he devoted his full energies to business and before the war was operating a flying school at Larder Lake which trained some 60 young men who later donned the blue of the Royal Canadian Air Force. At the outbreak of war he hurried to Ottawa and offered his staff and equipment to Major General Lafèche, at that time Deputy Minister of National Defence, for the training of seaplane pilots.
 Some time later he was named Regional Director of Aircraft Detection with one of the largest territories to cover in the entire Dominion. Upon the termination of hostilities he was presented with documents of gratitude both from the R.C.A.F. and the United States Army Air Forces.
 A druggist by profession, Les Hornick was born in Tilbury, Ont., not long after the turn of the Century. He is a third generation Canadian whose paternal grandfather came to this country from Ireland. His maternal grandmother was a Scottish Presbyterian minister who migrated to the United States in the last century.
 Mr. Hornick received his primary education in the fertile corn belt of Southwestern Ontario and attended the Ontario College of Pharmacy of the University of Toronto, opening his first drug store in Port Colborne at the time of the depression.
 It was there that he acquired a grounding in the Slav languages and devoted further study to French, a language which he had learned in university. Now, after 14 years in cosmopolitan Kirkland Lake, he can converse fluently with nearly any of his neighbors and customers, no matter what their racial extraction.
 Two years ago, he became a member of the Teck Township Public School Board and now, with a background of tried, proven and recognized service, he goes before you, the electorate of South Cochrane, confident that with your support he can provide this riding with the kind of representation it has been lacking for so many years.
 If you believe in Les Hornick like the rest of us who know and like him so well, work on his behalf and place your mark on June 4 after his name.

ON JUNE 4th
VOTE FOR LES HORNICK
