not know what he could do and had to find out by the trial and error method. We ask the indulgence of employers in this regard, because we know this will likely happen again many times until adjustment has been completed.

The point we must always remember is, that we have a definite obligation to these men. We must find places for them in our community, if it is their wish to stay here with their families or friends. The war may be over for us, but it is never over for these men until they have found useful work that they can do, which brings them a fair return and which they know and their employers know is not charty.

In this connection, survey made by several large employers have shown that handicapped persons have many advantages over others not handicapped. They have proved more conscientious in their work, have less absenteeism, fewer accidents, the quality of their work is better, the quantity higher and they are undoubtedly more loyal.

In closing, may I again stress the fact that the rehabilitation of any disabled or handicapped veteran is a co-operative affair and this Committee needs the help of all persons or agencies who are in any way concerned.

If you know of any disabled veteran who may be helped in any way with a rehabilitation problem, please let us know, but there are some who will be missed and some who may need advice who are not yet discharged.

If you wish to get in touch with us, write or contact our Secretary, Hugh Thompson at Room 2, Richardson Building, 24 Pine St. North, Timmins, or enquire at the Canadian Legion Branches in South Porcupine or Timmins.

B. C. Appointment for W. G. Heslop

News has been received here that W. G. (Will) Heslop, who was on the geological staff of the Hollinger mine prior to enlisting in the R. C. A. F., where he obtained the rank of Squadron Leader, has been appointed associate professor of civil engineering at the University of British Columbia, Vancouver.

He was appointed resident engineer in charge of road construction with the Department of Highways in 1934, later joining the staff of the Hollinger mine where he remained until 1940 when he enlisted.

During his stay in Timmins Mr. Heslop was actively connected with the Golf and Badminton Clubs and held office in the Porcupine Fish and Games Association.

Political Egotism

Next thing to having a good opinion of oneself is to have a high opinion of the political party to which one belongs. This epigrammatic gem of wisdom was inspired by a Labor Day Message delivered by C.C.F. leader M. J. Coldwell which appeared in the Manitoba Commonwealth, in which he said: "To me one conclusion is inescapable. Never was the need for the C. C. F. greater than it is today. Mankind is literally running a race with disaster."

It that statement means anything, it means that the only political party that can save mankind from disaster is the C.C.F. One could not imagine the leader of any other political party making the same sweeping claim. Mr. Bracken may be strongly opposed to certain policies of Liberal government, and Mr. King may be equally opposed to those of the Conservative Party, but neither of those gentlemen would be so foolish as to declare that if they were not elected Canada would go the dogs, much less that their election was necessary to save mankind from disaster.

But Mr. Coldwell is quite serious on this last point. He even goes so far as to claim that the election of the

C.C.F. and like parties is essential if mankind is to be saved from extermination by the atomic bomb. He says: "In the international field the advent of the atomic bomb threatens mankind with extermination. There is no road to peace except through world labor and socialist victories."

If this be true, then it is indeed a wonderful thing all the wisdom of the ages is sifted and concentrated in one political party or one economic creed. But we have had too many recent as well as ancient examples of that kind of political egotism, and the latest example under Hitler led to the greatest disaster the world has ever known. When a person or party becomes obsessed by the delusion that they have discovered the one infallible remedy for all the ills of mankind their prevailing passion is to gain power to put it into effect.

But there is no such remedy to be found in the realm of politics or economics, for mankind is made up of a great variety of races, mixed races, peoples and nations, in various stages of religious intellectual and social development. Even within the most advanced nations there is a complexity of wifful individuals that could not conform to any rigid system such as Socialism without compulsion and the loss of freedom. This may be accomplished in times of national peril, such as war, when a free people will submit to regimentation for the sake of preserving their freedom. But, having preserved their freedom, they will proceed to exercise it when national danger is passed and peace has returned. That is the answer to those who dogmatically declare that "What we can do in war we can do in peace."

There is no such thing as equality among human beings. One has only to look around at the occupants of a street car, or watch the passers-by on a crowded street, to be struck with the physical and mental inequalities of human beings. And this inequality of physique and mental capacity is not the result of our social system, and no system of economics, however perfect, can change it. Human nature is what it is and human beings are what they are, and if it is all wrong, then the blame must be placed elsewhere than on the capitalist or our system of government.

The same problem of variety and complexity faces us in the international field in an even more intensified form, and it is not so easy of solution as Mr. Coldwell would have us believe. Indeed it is more than likely what Mr. Coldwell calls "labor and socialist victories" would only tend to aggravate the situation and speed up the "race with disaster." The atomic bomb is no different, except in degree, from any other bomb, and there is more likelihood of its being used with disastrous effect by a fanatical totalitarian government, whether it be fascist or socialist, than by a well-balanced democracy of free people who can check the rise of a one-man or one-party dictatorship. The C. C. F. Party may have its place and purpose in our democratic order, but it is by no means the sole repository of social or political wisdom.

REAL SPORT

After closely inspecting the array of silver cups displayed in the jeweller's shop, the seedy stranger asked:

"What are those big cups for?"

"Those sir," was the reply, are the cups to be competed for at our Civil Defence Sports Meeting on Saturday."

"Are they?" said the stranger thoughtfully. Then he picked up one and edged towards the door. "Well, suppose you race me for this one?"

The Basic English course for beginners, which was so popular to many during the past two years, will be continued. More advanced students will continue their studies in separate groups. There will be a special group for beginners only.

Rev. A. I. Heinenon, who has conducted the school during the past eight school years, will be in charge of the schools in Timmins and South Porcupine.
