

Clothing Collection Commences Here

This week a special appeal is being made in the schools in connection with the National Clothing Collection. Boxes and posters are being placed in the schools and the appeal is being made through the medium of the principals and teachers.

The central collection depot is situated in the show-room of Chelmer Motors on Birch Street South.

Boxes have also been placed in the lobbies of theatres and in the Post Office.

The committee in charge of the collection earnestly requests the whole-hearted co-operation and unstinted support of the people of the district. The need is very urgent and well-organized committees are devoting much valuable time and their services to really make this campaign an outstanding success in the Porcupine district.

Comparatively speaking the Porcupine district has been untouched by the suffering and misery of war and it seems inconceivable that in a country where rationing has been negligible and shortages practically non-existent that the appeal for warm clothing will go unchallenged to add another winter of suffering to the five or six years of misery during the German occupation of Europe.

Please folk, get busy now and rummage through those cupboards, trunks and drawers. Don't forget if the clothing collection doesn't get your unused clothing the moths will, so anything that is clean and wearable that has outlived its usefulness in your home will be very acceptable.

"No one in this country can contemplate for a moment the conditions of distress, disease, anarchy and bloodshed that would result if the liberated nations had to face the next twelve months without assistance."

This was the declaration made by the Right Hon. Ernest Bevin, Britain's Foreign Secretary when he told the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration in London that Britain's new Labour Government would stand behind the efforts to aid the liberated countries of Europe.

The people of Britain suffered much during the last six years of war. They were in the front line all the time. Hundreds of thousands of civilians, as well as members of the armed forces, gave their lives in order that democracy might not perish from the earth. Now that the victory has been won, the British people are not sitting back and saying, "We have done our share, let somebody else carry the load that rehabilitation of the devastated countries of Europe will entail."

They are willing to carry on, even though thousands of them have lost their homes and all their belongings.

The people of Canada, who have been spared so much of the miseries of modern warfare, are also willing to carry on, and bear some of the load. Through the Dominion Government they can and will supply foodstuffs that are so badly needed. But the opportunity for personal service on the part of individual citizens is something else. There are thousands of Canadians who have felt that they have not made that personal sacrifice which seemed to be called for in an all-out war effort. Perhaps the fault has not been theirs. Opportunities for personal service, for those who could not join the armed forces or work with Red Cross groups and similar organizations, were not numerous.

But now their big opportunity has come. Millions of men, women and children in the liberated countries are in rags. The clothes they wore when the enemy invaded their homelands and repulsed them of everything they possessed are worn to tatters. They have been patched and repatched, turned and returned until they are in shreds, and unless the disaster which Ernest Bevin envisioned is to overtake them, clothes of every kind must be found for them immediately.

Time does not permit, even if the material were available, for new clothes to be manufactured and sent to them. But used clothing, as long as it is serviceable, can fill the urgent need of these long-suffering people, and help tide them over the most difficult period of rehabilitation.

Realizing this, a dozen war relief organizations in Canada have joined together under the title of the Canadian United Relief Fund to sponsor a National Clothing Collection on behalf of UNRRA to be made from October 1 to October 20. The Canadian people are asked to donate several million pounds of serviceable used clothing from their well-stocked wardrobes—clothes that they can spare, and which the people in the liberated countries will be glad to wear.

as the enrolment consisted largely of ex-service men, to all of whom he pointed out that Northern Ontario presented great opportunities. The success of the present class would be a guide towards future expansion of the educational facilities of the North he said, and this would not be confined to the mining industry. He told the students that all the men on the advisory board were men who had made good in mining, and he urged them not to be afraid of starting at the bottom.

Mr. Walli said there were now 58 students enrolled of whom 41 were ex-service men, and out of 70 other applications received about 60 had been accepted. This was creating a problem, both in the school and in the matter of accommodation in the community. Mr. Rutherford said that the Institute was setting a pattern for other phases of education, and Mr. Saxton gave some timely advice to the students telling them that if they made a success of it there would be other opportunities presented for higher education.

Nelma W. Johnson and Paul V. Sillanpaa Have Fall Wedding

Autumn flowers adorned the Mountjoy United Church on Tuesday afternoon at four o'clock, when the Rev. F. J. Koski, of Kirkland Lake, united in marriage Nelma Wellamo Johnston, only daughter of the late Mr. Johnston and Mrs. T. Jarvis, of 104 Balsam Street South, and Paul Victor Sillanpaa, youngest son of Mr. Chas. Sillanpaa, of Worthington, and the late Mrs. Sillanpaa. The bridegroom had enlisted with Canada's first active army units early in 1940, serving as sergeant overseas until his return to Canada in August. Mrs. J. Wilkins presided at the organ during the ceremony, while Mrs. W. Sivunen sang, "I Love You Truly".

Given in marriage by Mr. K. Luoma, the bride made a lovely picture in a floor-length gown of white frosted organza, featuring a sweetheart neckline, softly draped bodice, flared skirt, and long sleeves which tapered to points over the wrists. Her sweetheart cap bore a finger-tip length veil of white net, and she carried pinnocchio roses with bouvardia.

Mrs. Wm. Sillanpaa, sister-in-law of the bridegroom, as matron-of-honour, was charmingly attired in powder blue frosted marquisette, fashioned with fitted bodice, sweetheart neckline, full skirt, and short sleeves. She wore a halo-effect Juliet cap to match, and carried yellow gladioli.

Miss Ruth Westerholm, of Gold Centre, as bridesmaid, wore dusky rose frosted marquisette, cut on similar lines to that worn by the matron-of-honour, and carried orchid gladioli.

Sergeant Kauno Korri, who is spending a thirty-day leave with his parents prior to receiving his discharge from an Army Security Unit, acted as groomsmen, while Messrs. W. Sivunen, and Paul Sillanpaa, nephew of the bridegroom, were ushers.

Following the ceremony, Mrs. Jarvis, mother of the bride, in a street-length ensemble of printed black crepe, with black accessories and a corsage of roses, received relatives at a wedding supper held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. Pynnönen, 71 Balsam street south. In the early evening, a large number of friends attended a reception at the Harmony Hall, where Mrs. Pynnönen, wearing black crepe with touches of white, and matching accessories, Mrs. L. Laakso in a suit of brown crepe, and Mrs. K. Luoma in black crepe, received the guests.

Later, the bride and groom left for points south, the bride travelling in a suit of Chinese red butcher linen, with black accessories. Within a few weeks they will leave to take up residence in Yellowknife.

Out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Sillanpaa, of Worthington; Mr. V. Sillanpaa, of Sault Ste. Marie, brother of the groom; Mr. V. Tuomi, of Worthington; Mrs. C. V. Sillanpaa, of Sudbury, sister-in-law of the groom; Mrs. L. Johnson, of Sudbury; and Mrs. E. Kuusisto, of Kirkland Lake.

Prior to her marriage, the bride was entertained at a miscellaneous shower with Mrs. Wm. Sillanpaa, Mrs. R. Buck, Mrs. R. Thatcher, Mrs. G. Teeple, Mrs. F. Winder, and Mrs. C. Byrd as hostesses; a miscellaneous shower with Mrs. L. Laakso, Mrs. K. Luoma, and Mrs. E. Pynnönen as hostesses; a personal shower in Hamilton with Miss Doris Koskela, formerly of Timmins as hostess; and was given a personal gift by the employees of the Irvin Air Chute Limited, where she was employed in Hamilton.

Premier George Drew Attends Official Opening of the Mining Institute

That the Provincial Institute of Mining in Haileybury is being treated as a "Pilot Plant" which will be closely watched by the Department of Education with a view to the establishment of similar institutions for training in other industries, was the statement made by Premier George Drew, who in his capacity of Minister of Education visited the school recently for an official opening.

Present with the Premier were F. S. Rutherford, director of vocational schools; H. C. Rickaby, deputy minister of mines, and a majority of members of the Institute's advisory committee. Mayor N. Morissette and members of the town council, together with a number of other citizens were present when the official opening was held in one of the Institute rooms.

Principal O. E. Walli presided over the meeting and introduced members of the advisory committee; Mayor Morissette, who is also a member of the committee, introduced Premier Drew, and other speakers were Mr. Rutherford and Stanley Saxton, chairman of the committee and a graduate of the former School of Mines.

Premier Drew said the opening of the Institute had a special significance.

This is National Newspaper Week

National Newspaper Week is being observed from Oct. 1st to 8th—a time when we of The Porcupine Advance dedicate ourselves anew to service to our community.

There is a tendency with some people to worship bigness. The large organization, however, does not by virtue of size alone contribute most to the welfare of the community. That is true in many things, and not the least is it so with the written word, as has been shown often in the pages of Canada's weekly newspapers.

The weekly press serves its constituents in a manner which many dailies do not. Nor are the quantities of courage, of intelligence, of public service shown by the daily press superior to those of the weekly. On occasion large daily papers have failed to expose wrongs which deserve the light of day, while the weeklies have not hesitated to do their duty. In addition, the weekly newspapers are, in many ways, closer to the readers, and so able to serve them better.

On the whole, the weekly papers of Canada have done a most worthy job in the trying days of the war. They have given generously of their limited space; they have discussed with responsibility the actions of the various governments, and have not failed to be critical where criticism was warranted.

Because they are important institutions in community life, the announcement of the annual awards of the Canadian Weekly Newspapers Association is always of as great interest to their subscribers as to the newspaper profession. This year's awards again show that the vigor of the weekly newspapers has not been lost, and that for general interest, make-up and editorial opinion, in many cases, they hold their own with the metropolitan press.

The award for the best all-round weekly newspaper went to the Vernon News of Vernon, B.C. It is a well-edited, bright paper which deserves distinction of being chosen as the top one among fine publications with which it competes. The runner-up was the Midland Free Press-Herald, and next in line the Brampton Conservator. Both of these publications are well known in Ontario, far beyond the environs of their respective communities.

The Midland Free Press-Herald also won the highest award for the best editorial page for papers with more than 2,000 circulation. In second place was the Port Erie Times-Review. For the best front page in the "over 2,000" circulation class the prize went to the Brampton Conservator.

Other awards for smaller-circulation weeklies were also announced, and among these the general standard was equally high. The home towns of these winning newspapers might well be proud of their papers, and, in feeling pride, should reflect upon the service which they have been receiving through the years.—(Globe and Mail).
