Dome Trounces Combines By 8-3 Score In Rough Puckchasing Display

Small Stars For Losers Normie Woon chalked up another of the season on the McIntyre ice at 9.09. cushion last night the Dome Porkies sent the Combines to an 8-3 defeat.

Combines, playing practically totally disorganized hockey, missed out on mary a scoring chance and presented the Porkies with many a base for the construction of successful play.

Burrill Small shone for the losers with Norm Woon and Bill Maki standing out for the Dome squad, Maki wound up the session with another four points to his credit on three asists and a tally.

Both squads missed on scoring chances in the opener with Dome finally sinking a brace of markers as lovely little piece of work at 16.50. Casanato watched from the bench after receiving the nod through boarding incident.

In the pre-season tilts, Dome and Combines tangled in what we thought was a pretty rough session . . . . the final stanza of the game last night, between the same clubs made the tilt in reference look like a waltz session . . . the final period was horrible . . and we mean horrible . . The team we blame for it is the Combines . . . and the Dome squad can take a small part of the blame just to keep the thing from getting too one-sided.

The Dome boys are no slouches when it comes to getting rough, but for any trouble ever started there has always been a provocative source of one type or another and believe us when we say that the irritant in this case was none other than the needless rough stuff handed out by the Whoever does the dirty work . . . . juniors or otherwise . . . it still hurts and we are certain the recipient of the roughing is not going to feel any too happy about it and you can't blame him.

The opening stanza was fairly well played as was the second . . . though the juniors were disorganized and the game was fairly slow . . . aside from this the game would have been summed up as a slow game but not too baú . . . . . comes the final session and what do we get but a shinny match and the off-colour doin's.

We do not blame the referees . . . but we will throw a strong hint as to where the trouble could and should have been cured . . . . right at the bench of the offending team . . . . (now duck, Wilson).

Out of the game we will take Burril Small as a shining light who set up many a constructive play for his bosom chums and who worked hard all night . . . . next in line we'll take Dyer . . . . not as spectacular as the rest but a hard-working cog throughout the tangle and who chalked up a well deserved point.

Woon and Maki enter the limelight together as a pair of starring gents on behalf of the Porkies and we would also like to make mention of the Pirie boys who have certainly worked into an effective defence pair.

Perhaps this is a poor time of year to be talking about fishing, but as about 2,000,000 people in Canada (don't quote this) go in for the sport, we feel we should like to pass on this story.

Seems there is a lake in Newfoundland, (according to Wilbur) which at times presents fishermen with many a thrill. To make the affair interesting you must get out to the lake in the afternoon, all set for a great day being doubly sure to bring along a friend.

The lake (Johnson Lake) near Gander, is reputed to be good fishing ground, but this particular day you miss out entirely up until dusk settles down around and about you, then things begin to happen.

You try to reel in, nonchalant like, only to realize that you are snagged or something, and here you are using your best tackle. The next realization is that you are not snagged but instead you have commenced to ruin Mr. Fish's upper plate and he at the same time begins giving you "Whuffo"

Your rod bends, your arm aches until you get the catch near shore and not until he is almost in do you see him and then you are astounded, he has a little head, which makes you wonder as to just what it is you have, then when you see the rest of him your imagination runs riot.

But as Wilbur says, don't be alarmd, you have only landed an Atlantic

This story was very good, especially the actions accompanying said story, when we first heard it. However, the second one in which our story teller told us he had found a lake where you could get as many fish with as many hocks as you care to put on a leader, and that he himself had filled up half a boat doing same, proved to us that our friend was indeed a fisherman, so why doubt him

Maybe some people take longer than others to get over the effects of the holiday season, we don't know, but we do know that it took the Hollinger boys a little over two period to get down to business on a steady basis in the tangle on the McIntyre cushion on Monday night.

In fact, it might be said that the McIntyre boys practically played them right into the ice for that time, and the Macmen were not exactly up to their usual standards.

From time to time it looked as though the Green-sweatered squad were really going to set off the session, but alas and alack, a burst and a stop was the presentation, with nothing brought forth in regard continued

The final frame was a little different. They started working, and we are still wondering over their luck at being able to get away at a loss of 5-4. Around the net clearing was something 'orrible and in fact we may venture to say that said 'orrible clearing was partly responsible for two of the tallies against them.

'Ah weel," we'll call a halt to our nattering and say something nice (kaf, har-ummf, kaf, kaf,). McKay played a great game (participated in a waltz session with bosom chum Cooke as well) Petrucci and Therriault worked hard all night . . . . Morgan was rewarded for his commendable efforts with three tallies and a starring game . . . . Tomiuk, Delmonte and Wilson turned in a

The average league hockey fan is "a muddled moron who jams the nation's ice palaces because he hasn't anything better to do", . . . . so say (according to a news item) the sport writers down the way.

Maybe that sort of opinion will go in some places . . . . but if you voice an opinion like that in this part of the province, you had better be in possession of a barrel . . . . reason . . . . you'll need it, brother, and besides it may prove to be slightly draughty at times . . . . even though the weatherman is a little off the beam at the present time.

We'll agree with the argument regarding the new or "modern" rules . . . . (important, ain't we) but we won't go in for that type of opinion regarding the fans.

The "modern" rules are indeed bewildering . . . . yet taking all into consideration the fans here turn up with many a good view on games and hockey in general.

We do think though that the "modern" rules (they are indeed revolutionary) are 'orrible 'ard on a player.

In fact they are nothing more than a set of creations worked up by a group of people (watch the dirt fly) who are expected to say or do something every once in a while, in order to retain their positions as figureheads on the bow of the ship, that is now ploughing through hockey with more phony suggestions than a certain company has pills.

It has been decided that the trophy shall be put up for the singles championship in place of the White Label Trophy which has been taken out of competition. The committee are to meet on Sunday to decide on the date of the draw. This singles championship has always been the tit-bit of the season and is always well contested.

Britt (North Bay Nugget) Jessup voices opinions to the effect that this district is really quite the hockey centre.

To quote, "At lavish McIntyre Arena, the North's Maple Leaf Gardens, we learned that JUVENILE hockey teams get from three to four FREE PRACTICES per week, and have a DRESSING ROOM ALL THEIR OWN for the season." From our own pen . . . thanks to the capable management who have made the arena and the activities therein an object of pride for the district. Jessup also made note of the fact that basketball, was absent from the scene. A while ago this column carried a suggestion for the starting of an inter-town league and asked for comment on same.

We were thinking it may be a great way for the other sportsmen, whose predelections run to the speedy sport, to get in to the game.

Maki has Busy Night As Dome Takes 7-3 Victory Over Bisons

Fars at the South Porcupine arena on Saturday night were presented with a 7-3 win on behalf of the Dome club, playing on home ice, as they dished up the second defeat of the season to the Ankerite Bisons, being sparked along the winning road by Bill Maki, who rang up a brace of tallies and an assist for his night's work

Maki also spent 14 minutes in the art of bench warming, with ten minutes of the trouser creasing time resulting from a ten-minute misconduct stretch. Clouthier and Pirie were the only other occupants of the pen during the tangle.

Tallentino chalked up a goal and a pair of assists, McKay and Romanick took a brace of tallies apiece and Kosick and Nastasuik rang up an assist per person.

In the Bison ranks, Ladds took two goals, and Brklacich a single with Lahti taking the asist on one of Ladd's pair of markers.

The 7-3 defeat, the second of two handed out by the Porkies to the Bisons on home ice, was marked with referee McCann receiving the verbal seiges of the fans and players and both coaches voicing dislike towards the manner in which the goal judges were attending to their jobs.
