Charge Of Defrauding Brings 30-Day Sentence In Tuesdays Court Case

Charge Of Illegally Keeping Liquor For Sale Is Remanded; $7,000 Bail

Double trouble confronted Beverly Russell of Timmins when he appeared before the court on Tuesday to answer, first, a charge of drunkenness which drew him a fine of $10 and costs and second a charge of attempted defrauding, which, at the termination of his hearing, brought about a court decision of a sentence of 30 days. Both sentences, the thirty days and an additional ten days, provided he cannot pay the $10. fine on the drunk charge, will run consecutively.

Russell, it appeared, had borrowed money from a friend from time to time which came to a total of $25. He had then made out a cheque to cover a portion of the amount, which could be drawn from the Royal Bank of Canada. According to the accused, the paper was meant to be nothing more than an I.O.U.

The friend, however, had attempted to cash the cheque and had run into difficulty on finding that there was no branch of that bank in town, he had given Russell considerable time to make good his promise of repayment but nothing had been done.

Rupert Amo, answering charges arising from neglect of wife and family, was bound over for a year on a $100. bond, being cautioned by the magistrate to see to it that his family was properly cared for.

The first of two assault cases heard was halted through lack of a medical report. The case arose from a family rift between husband and wife. Evidence, given by both, conflicted and shortly after the start of the hearing the magistrate called a halt with the words, "I want to hear Dr. Lane's evidence." The wife in the case, it was learned, has been taking treatments from the doctor at the local chest clinic and apparently during the scuffle, she received bruises to her chest.

The husband in the case is on $100 property bail and or $50 cash bail.

The second assault case was dismissed after a lengthy hearing. The stories of the two main people in the affair were naturally different. Some trouble was found in getting the defendant to admit that he had blacked the other man's eye during the scuffle that arose from a conversation centring on business and a small sum of money said to be owed the man receiving the black eye.

At first the defendant said he had held his arm out to ward off the attacker and that was all. However, the court asked him why he could not say definitely that he had struck the man.

After being asked a few times the defendant looked out at the court and said, very definitely, "if he has a black eye, then I gave him a black eye."

Jacob Moring of Mountjoy Township was fined $10 and costs as a result of charges of cruelty to his horse. Moring did not appear in court. The charges were laid against him last week, after the police had reported finding his horse standing outside a local hotel in bitter cold weather. The horse had reportedly been left to stand for hours without even the protection of a blanket.

Four persons answered charges of speeding, three out of court, with two paying fines of $15 and costs, one man paying the fine twice for the same number of infringements of the traffic laws, while the remaining two drew fines of $10 and costs.

One person was fined $3 and costs out of court, on a charge of going through a red light.

Three charges of drunkenness netted the offenders fines of $10 and costs with one case of illegal possession of beer meriting a fine of $10 and costs with a similar fine imposed on a person found in illegal possession of wine.

Seven fines of $1 and costs were imposed on three persons charged with illegal parking, four persons guilty of allowing their dogs to run at large. One case of allowing a dog to run at large was withdrawn, as was a charge of keeping a dog without a license.

A person alleged to have gone through a stop sign will appear at the next court session.

Seven persons, duly charged after a police raid on a Timmins home on Sunday morning, appeared before the court, asked for an adjournment and were granted their request. The owner of the house is charged with illegally keeping liquor for sale and the remaining six are charged as a result of being "found in". Bail for the owner of the home is set at $7,000 property, for the others at $25 cash.

They will appear at the next court session next Tuesday.

Also granted adjournments and permitted bail were two young men arrested Tuesday morning, and reported to be connected with a case of theft.

BEEFS! By "TARDY"

The hats women buy and the pride they take in the wearing of them are enough, at times, to make a man wonder whether or not he should call in a psychiatrist, or if he should just sneak the creation in to Fido's territory and forget ever seeing it.

But then once Fido had the hat he probably worry it to such an extent that when the little woman found her lid again she would think it to be an adorable helmet and would maybe spend weeks trying to figure out just where and when she had made the purchase.

If you take time out to wander up and down the streets, one in a while you will see for yourself the many amazing bonnets the designers are tossing off the line.

First, there is the complete coverage type that covers the shoulders in its wide sweep and is guaranteed to stop everything from rain to peanut shells, the latter when the little lady is sitting directly under the balcony in one of the theatres. Worst of all, however, is the impression this wide sweep hat creates. It is generally worn by the smallest tomatoes, making them look like over-developed mushrooms.

Then there is the finger-bowl creation, worn upside-down and down-side-up. If worn up-side-down it gives the tiddley-wink experts fiendish ideas, and if worn the other way it collects all sorts of things. At times it may even be taken for a fancy ash-tray and through this may bring about no end of trouble.

This type of helmet is generally worn by the taller species of female.

Then we have pyramid hats which reach tremendous heights and give the worrying type of man no end of food for thought.

Next is the dipper creation with a beanie affair to keep the thing on the cranium and a large projection which can stick out from any angle and it worn with the handle sticking to the rear provides a good excuse for mayhem especially if worn in a theatre or when riding in a public vehicle.

Then there are the technicolour types which can take any form of composition but will never escape giving the impression that the wearer is the spouse of a painter and has escaped a family spat without injury other than to her hat.

Besides these there is the fish bowl, the garden scene, with everything from birds to berries sprayed around the felt base, bird cages, felt plates with more net than a Grand Banks fisherman ever thought of owning; wild west affairs, beanie and so forth.

One of these days they will be coming out with a wide felt plate carrying replicas of every item of food that goes to make a six-course dinner. They may even have the bill accompanying said plate stuck up in front, or have they already done that?

Nevertheless, the ladies go on wearing them and the poor, suffering male will continue paying for something that causes him trouble unlimited in trying to arrive at a solution as to what on earth it is the wife has brought home this time.

Public Confidence

THE LONDON LIFE is now trustee for over three-quarters of a million policyholders. The extent of the confidence placed in it during the past year can be measured in part by the purchase of $138,300,000 new life insurance. The total amount of insurance in force is $1,133,000,000—an increase of $98,491,000. It is noteworthy that the quest by Canadians for financial security resulted in an increase of half a billion dollars of life insurance in this company during the war years.

This record of growth has meant a corresponding increase in the company's obligations to policyholders—size being a measure of responsibility. The assets amount to $226,229,000—a sum sufficient to meet all the obligations of the company and provide a wide margin of security. Surplus funds for the added protection of policyholders total $18,460,000.

Money invested in life insurance has rightly been termed "double duty dollars". While it provides the policyholder with the desired financial protection for himself and his family, it is invested in ways that are most valuable to the country.

During the war the company invested $145,000,000 in Victory Bonds—a sum more than 50% greater than the increase in the assets for the period of the war. In the days that lie ahead, funds held for the future benefit of policyholders will be used to aid the transition from war to peace; to assist people to build or buy homes; to aid business and industrial enterprise and to finance public works.

A determining factor in the attainment of its present position has been the loyalty and efficiency of the sales representatives of the company. The high quality of their work as life insurance counsellors has been of great value to their clients.

Public confidence in the London Life has been created by its record for low cost, financial strength and skilled staff. In these important considerations the company is building also for the years ahead—an assurance of continued satisfaction to policyholders.

A copy of the 1945 Annual Report will be mailed upon request.
