

Two Mystery Films On Cartier Program

In "The French Key", one of two features to be seen on the Cartier screen on Monday and Tuesday, Albert Dekker a private detective, and his ape-like sidekick, Mike Mazurki, go through a series of melodramatic adventures before they clear themselves of a murder charge. With chuckles thrown in liberally, the film, patterned in the usual murder-mystery formula, makes for agreeable entertainment.

The title is derived from a soft-metal key, which, when inserted in a lock, can easily be broken off. Not having paid their hotel rent, the boys find themselves the victims of this embarrassing predicament, and, to complicate matters, with a corpse in their room.

The final solution of the mystery entails an involvement with a night club performer, Evelyn Ankers, an 1832 gold coin, a foray into a deserted mine, and three bronze bears. In one scene, Mazurki comes to grips with Sammy Stein, noted wrestler of another day, with all surrounding poolroom furniture soon coming to ruin.

The second feature, "The Invisible Informer", conjures up an eerie atmosphere of lurking danger in treacherous bayou country.

As a pair of insurance company investigators, William Henry and Linda Stirling find themselves assigned to a most unusual case of uncovering the disappearance of an aristocratic Southern family's emerald necklace.

Pursuit of clues leads Miss Stirling into the arms of Gerald Mohr, a dangerous playboy, since he a dissolute scion of the family, has the unsporting habit of killing the things he loves.

It takes a good deal of clever sleuthing and able fisticuffing for Henry to solve the enigma and finally prove the theft of the necklace was part of a hoax to cheat the insurance company. Others in the cast include Adele Mara and Peggy Stewart.

'Holiday In Mexico' Is Palace Feature

Acting talent and melodic resources are lavishly distributed in the colorful new musical, "Holiday In Mexico," which opens at the Palace Theatre on Sunday midnight. The result is a delightfully tuneful and infectious musical-drama filmed in Technicolor against stunning south of the border backgrounds.

Walter Pidgeon is seen as the suave American ambassador to Mexico who finds he needs all the diplomacy at his command to prevent his motherless daughter from making a fool of herself over an older man with whom she imagines herself to be in love. The daughter is played with charm and sympathy by young Jane Powell, and the older man by Jose Iturbi, who again reveals himself the possessor of a sure dramatic hand as well as of those celebrated keyboard fingers.

As a sub-plot is the romantic meeting between Pidgeon and Ilona Massey, cast as a former courtesan and current Mexico City nightclub star.

It is the attraction of her father for the glamorous Miss Massey that makes the impressionable daughter feel herself to be unwanted and diverts her attention to Iturbi, much to the disgust of Roddy McDowall, her young admirer, who is involved in all the torments of puppy-love.

The complications are finally ironed out when Iturbi presents his two grandchildren to the chagrined Miss Powell and brings her to the realization that young McDowall is really more her type.

No Dull Moments In Cartier Weekender

There's never a dull moment in "Sheriff of Cimarron," the high spot on the Cartier program for Friday and Saturday. It is crammed with action from the first reel to the last. Linda Stirling is given more to do than most Western heroines, and does it effectively. Sunset Carson's performance, as always, is good.

The screenplay tells how Sunset, released from prison after serving three years for a crime he did not commit, goes to Cimarron in search of his brother. He believes that his brother will help to clear his name, but discovers, on the contrary, that it was his brother who was responsible for framing Sunset.

Acting as temporary sheriff of the town, Sunset tracks down the leader of a gang which has been rustling cattle, robbing stagecoaches and committing similar depredations. The leader turns out to be Sunset's brother, who, thus exposed, clears Sunset's name.

SEVENTY-FIVE YEARS OF BANKING

From the days of the Little Red Schoolhouse to the present age of scientifically planned and equipped school buildings, The Dominion Bank has been promoting progress. With 75 years of such participation in community betterment behind it, this Bank looks to the future with continued faith and optimism.

Schools for TOMORROW!

Tomorrow's schools will employ new facilities for enhancing the child's health and happiness.

With windows above the roof of the corridors, the classrooms will be flooded with light from both sides, fostering good eyesight and encouraging cheerfulness.

Seating arrangement will be flexible. Moveable desks and chairs will make it easy to group the pupils, according to need, for greater convenience, comfort and interest.

Radio receivers with built-in loudspeakers will enable the teacher to make full use of educational broadcasts.

Such things, combined with new materials, modern heating and ventilation, plenty of window space, will conduce to "sound minds in sound bodies" in Canada's Schools of Tomorrow. Enterprise will produce them. This Bank will provide enterprise with the resources needed to translate plans into practise.
