IN MEMORIAM

In Loving Memory of a dear husband and father Joseph E. Baxter who was killed on the 13th of March 1942.

"I lonesome home without you Dad
And sad the weary day
For life is not the same to us.
Since you were called away
If we had all the world to give
We'd give it yet more and more
To hear your voice and see your smile

And greet you at the door
So you who have a father
Cherish him with care.
For you'll never know the heartache
Till you see his vacant chair."

Lovingly remembered by his wife Lillian and son and daughter Morley and Ida.

British House-Wives and Socialism

By Lewis Milligan

The British Labor Government's White Paper on the country's economic position was described by the London Times as "the most disturbing statement ever made by a British Government." The Times has been remarkably fair toward the Attlee government since its election, and the above comment was not a criticism, but a plain statement of fact. The economic situation in Britain is disturbing in the extreme.

It is indeed pathetic to see the British people in such dire straits after all they suffered during the entire six years of the war. They did not suffer passively, as victims of an aggressor; they fought back and laid everything they possessed on the altar of sacrifice for freedom. They could, if they would, have yielded to the overwhelming might of Nazi Germany and thus saved themselves from slaughter and suffering and their cities from destruction.

What have the British people received in return for their courage and travail? They have preserved their national freedom at the cost of economic bankruptcy, and to add to their misfortunes they have come under the control of a group of political and economic theorists, whose experiments in nationalism have frustrated enterprise and brought privation to everybody. This latter they call "austerity"—a pretty word, but essentially no different from Goering's "Guns Before Butter," for it means "Socialism before sufficient food, clothing and coal."

I saw and experienced something of this condition of things in England last summer, and while I found that most people at that time were either indifferent towards the Government, or were willing to give it a fair trial, there was a general state of uncertainty among business men. They were not sure what the Government was going to do next. The workers, relieved from the strain of war, were living in a state of false economic security, based on high wages, short hours of labor and free social services. They had plenty of money to spend, but little to spend it on, except amusement and gambling. The labor leaders told the workers that they had triumphed over the capitalists and were now in the saddle. That was true too true.

But even as early as last June there were murmurings on the part of housewives who had to rush out immediately after breakfast to get into queues to obtain the very spare rations of food, often enough to return home with less than their allotted portion. These murmurings have since grown into grumblings, and the present situation in Britain goes to prove that socialism and free enterprise do not mix—that they are mutually destructive. Socialism is a political and economic theory which can only be put into effect by the total destruction of capitalism and of individual freedom, as in Russia at the revolution. That was the dogma of Karl Marx, and it is the position taken by all communists today. The British people are learning the hard way.

Unemployment Insurance Fund Bal. $362,093,781.01

The balance in the Unemployment Insurance Fund as of January 31, 1947, was $362,093,781.04. It was announced today by the Unemployment Insurance Commission.

Joint employer-employee contributions paid into the Fund during January amounted to $6,660,660.89, an increase of $1,552,075.90 over the corresponding month last year. Included in the joint employer-employee contributions for January was a sum of $395,979.38, paid into the Fund by the Department of Veterans Affairs in respect of time spent in the Armed Services allowed gratis to veterans under certain conditions after they enter insurable employment.

Revenues also included the Dominion Government's contribution of $1,372,100.39, plus $641,175.62 interest on investment and profits on sale of securities.

The net increase in January this year amounted to $4,002,653.35 compared with $4,492,061.25 in January last year; thus benefit paid out to unemployed insured workers was less by 10 per cent in January this year.

Under the Unemployment Insurance Act the Dominion Government pays all costs of administering unemployment insurance and the National Employment Service, in addition to its share of contributions to the Fund. This means that no expenses incurred in the management of unemployment insurance are charged to the Fund.

REVOLUTION IN U.K.

Canadians would do well to watch closely the course of the Socialist revolution in Britain. The Financial Post comments editorially. The Attlee Government's Farm Control Bill, The Post continues, go so far in controlling the use and sale of land that property rights, as Anglo-Saxons understand them, will virtually cease to exist. The Farm Control Bill would give civil servants the power to tell a farmer what seeds to plant, what animals to grow, how hard to work.

If the civil servant disapproves the judgment and vigor of the farmer he can force the farmer to get off his land and can put it in charge of someone else. The bill also provides that any speculative profits arising out of development of land become the property of the State, rather than of the land-owner. But it does not suggest any compensation for other property owners whose holdings deteriorate in value. The British example,

The Post adds, demonstrates the impossibility of unscrambling socialist eggs. After land and property has been put through the Socialist wringer, it is impossible ever to restore the status quo ante.

grumblings are now said to be swelling into angry protests.

A correspondent of the New York Times, Michael Hoffman, in a dispatch from Sheffield says: Labor leaders in the Midlands are worried about the attitude of workers' wives toward the Labor Government. A month of calamity in the middle of Labor's second year in power has proved too much in many cases for their faith in socialism. There are lots of rows going on in Sheffield's cold homes between staunch laborites and their disillusioned wives. It is no wonder. The women have had far the worst of Britain's black February. For years they have been putting up with shortages and making do, spending hours in queues to get the family rations. For years their homes have been steadily getting drabber, their kitchen grimmer. On the top of all this has come the cold, electricity cuts and unemployment."

Purim Ball Outstanding Success

The seventh annual Purim Ball, held last night at the Riverside pavilion under the auspices of the Hebrew congregation B'nai Israel of Timmins, was the outstanding success of the spring season here. Choosing of Queen Esther was again the most popular event of the evening and this year the honour went to Miss Helen Johnston, Miss Dorothy Turcotte and Miss Ruth Babcock also won prizes. Judges included Dr. Jessel, William King, Fred Wohlo, Charles Brown and Dr. Scholes.

"I'm quite satisfied if the finance committee runs the council," said Mr. Stuart. Councillor Wren objected and asked that Mr. Stuart be asked to withdraw that statement. Mr. Stuart agreed.

Prospectors Classes

This week the classes for prospectors, held in the district each year, were opened at Schumacher by Dr. W. L. Goodwin. These classes are of great value to prospectors and mining men and others interested, Dr. Goodwin having wide knowledge and experience, and also having the happy faculty of being able to pass on this knowledge to others.

Blacksmith Shop Destroyed by Fire

On Saturday evening last about nine o'clock the blacksmith shop at Furness Mines in Deloro was destroyed by fire. The fire was in no way serious, though rumors to the contrary have been in circulation. One story would suggest that the whole plant at the property had been wiped out. This, of course, was not the case. The only damage done was to the blacksmith shop. The total loss will not amount to $100.

United States Investors

A party of United States investors is expected to visit the mining camps of Porcupine, Cobalt and Kirkland Lake during the next week or two. The party will come from various United States cities and will include about 125 men. They will travel by special train and will be in charge of Mr. A. M. Bilsky.

Spent Sub-Zero Night in Bush

Almost exhausted from nearly three days of tramping through the bush, Rene Belanger, 17 years old, returned to his home in Timmins last night. Provincial police, the game warden, volunteers and forestry aeroplane pilots were all out searching for the missing lad. Without food for 36 hours, Rene was glad to get home. He became confused in his directions on Sunday when he hit the Thibault mining claims to go on a hunting expedition. In the storm he got lost. After a time he found McChesney's camp, and the lumbermen put him on the right trail.

Greers and Dog Team Back

Back at work this week after their dog team trip to Ottawa, Denham and Harvey Greer arrived back at Schumacher Monday night. The dog team and equipment used on the trip to hand the invitation to Premier King to visit Timmins was shipped back on the same train.

Prospecting by Diamond Drill

In the past few years there has been an almost revolutionary revival in the Porcupine district, the gold-producing area of Ontario. The diamond drill has played an important part, and, for its guidance, there would be no other than the original mines in operation. Prospecting the modern way runs to 55,000 feet or approximately ten miles a month. After the break-up it is expected to reach 35,000 feet monthly at a cost of nearly $140,000.
