Christmas Cards

WRAPPED IN CELLOPHANE, Arlene Dahl is the spirit of yuletide and ready for delivery. The beautiful Arlene is currently to be seen playing opposite Red Skelton in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's riotous comedy, "A Southern Yankee."

I don't know how you feel about it, but in our family we would rather get a Christmas card that shows the results of children and parents' ideas of Yule-tide greetings than to receive the fanciest and most expensive product of the greeting card manufacturer. Perhaps your friends feel the same way. It's worth a try to find out, at any rate. And what fun everyone can have developing ideas for home-grown greetings! Older youngsters may be able to make linoleum block cuts with a little help from teachers or parents who can show them how to use linoleum-cutting tools. Christmas trees aren't too hard o sketent. Pictures of simple toys under the tree can be made quite effectively, too. Younger children can cut out circles of colored paper and paste them on a card. The popular magazines furnish all sorts of attractive pictures fairly crying out to be used. Parents and children together can decide what sort of photos of the family would have a Christmas touch and each can write a brief message to special friends on the back of such photos. These, indeed, are but a few of the ideas that can be used to bring our own particular brand of Christmas greetings to friends and relatives. Family discussion as to possibilities will probably bring out a great many others.

What we most need is the prayer of fervent desire for growth in grace, expressed in patience, meekness, love, and good deeds.

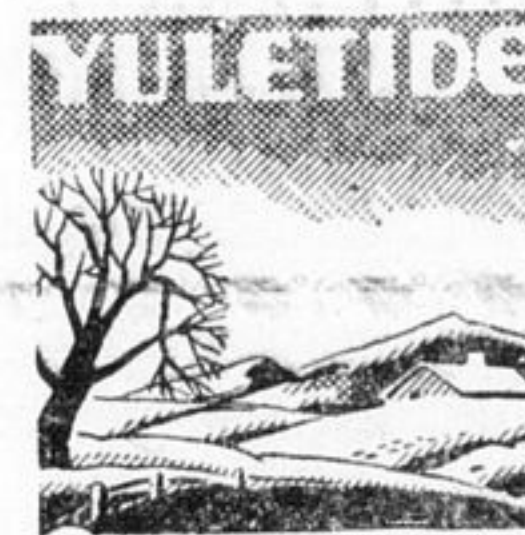

- Mary Baker Eddy.

There is no such way to attain to greater measure of grace as for a man to live up to the little grace he has.

- James Gordon Brooks.

To our many friends, we extend our wishes for a Yuletide filled with all the good things in life — good Health, Happiness, Peace and Prosperity
