SEPTEMBER'S HERE: For many Canadians September is the best month of all. The mellow warmth of its days and the frosty crispness of its nights bridge the gap between August heat and October chill. Moreover, it has many admirable qualities all its own. It's a good month to be outdoors, where the purple haze of early ing the summer months skating at autumn filters the golden flood of sunlight. Trees, shrubs and the Porcupine Figure Skating Club. grasses take on glints of gold.

In orchard, garden and field, the air is heady with the aroma of harvest-time. Fruit hangs ripe on tree and vine. Root crops wait to be dug. Fall wildflowers, Michaelmas daisies and goldenrod bloom in profusion along roadsides. For rural folk, the coming of September means a respite from the hard work of summer. The hay is in the barn, the threshing done. All that remains is the fruit harvest, the preserving and the potato digging before the an- ing the summer months in town. mual cycle of sowng and reaping draws to a close.

The townsman sees September as a turn in the year. The summer heat over and workers back from their holidays, he can put his hand to starting fall and winter projects with new zest and vigor. For students of all ages, September signals the start of another school year. New friends, new interests, sometimes new surroundings crowd in upon them, bringing promise of busy, hap- and Paul have left for Toronto where py months ahead.

School fairs, fall fairs, football games, harvest home services, plowing matches and all the other activities of autumn are almost at hand. The sportsman can oil his guns for hunting trips. Perhaps the most pleasant of all, September means the return of long fireside evenings when members of a family can gather for reading good talk, games, or just relax and dream.
