News From SOUTH PORCUPINE

High School Concert

For two nights Thursday and Friday the students of S. Porcupine High School presented a very fine concert to large audiences.

Mr. R. Ellis, principal, welcomed the patrons and said the students had thoroughly enjoyed getting ready for this concert. "Most of the items show a definite part of school work," he said. "The orchestra, the wonderful and best hall in the Porcupine Camp", auditorium, for which our School Board is responsible. The stage and properties make this the best stage he said, amidst applause.

Excellent Selections

The orchestra gave two excellent selections "The Heavens Are Telling" and "Blue Danube Waltz". The Glee Club (accompanist Joan Legary) composed of forty three girls were very tuneful and eplasing in "There are Fairies Danving." "Now the U Day is Over," "If You Can't Sing, Whistle" and "Fairylend."

A one-act play starring Ronald Eade as Bill "Elegant Edward" with John Scott as Burglar Bill, Peggy Ray as Mrs. Treherne, Allan Waren as a police sergeant and Allan Valino as a policeman, went over very well with Eade and Peggy Ray doing difficult roles quite well. (Credit is due Eade who has sprained his ankle in the afternoon but insisted on playing his part without obviously limping although it was definitely painful). A genuine burglar caught in the act by another "gentleman Jim" causes a diamond necklace to take the centre of the stage. Later, after elegant Edward had impersonated a gentleman with the lady of the house, and cleverly pocketed the jewels, he makes a gallant return of same when he discovers they are paste! Quite a good school play!

Girls Tumble

An excellent gymnastic display by girls followed: tumbling and acrobatic exhibitions to music (accompanist Joan Charley) were thoroughly enjoyed and applauded by the audience.

"Dancing through the years" (commentator Nina Barilko) showed the Minuet, Waltz, Charleston, Tango and modern dancing. This number gained the applause it merited. The costumes were perfect and the girls did the steps correctly and with charm. The Charleston was encored. Girls dancing were A. Kulik, E. Laurila, J. Legary, L. Luoma, D. McCann, B. McLelland, J. Proulx, M. Whitton and Nancy Wilder.

Fine Dancing

The "Ball Temple Dance" was one of the finest exhibitions of its kind to have been shown here. Excellent is a feeble term to apply to these two gifted girls whose interpretation of this Burmese dance was without doubt they gave a marvellous mechanical rhythmic dance, angularity and grotesqueness all adequate. Leila Tamminen and Shirley Schmelzle were given merited encores and applause.

The boys gymnastic display - basic and advanced tumbling got a good hand as did also the "Sailor's Dance" with Patricia Andrew, Patricia Belisle, Joan Charley, Betty Bulmer, Kathryn Fell and Wilma Gibson in costume with Norma Davidson at the piano.

The gem of the collection was the final one-act play which was given so naturally that one forgot the characters were acting, and could only admire the perspicacity of those responsible for choosing such a delightful little play for High School students to enact.

Natural Acting

Not one of the characters "acted" - It was called "Three's a Crowd" and the setting was a park between 7 and 9 p.m. Shirley Schmelzle as Madeline, Wendy Cross as Ellen and Graham Wright as Eddie Johnson Jr. were perfect. Eddie was taking his girl to a dance, had to take along her kid sister, couldn't get Father's car and hadn't enough money on him to pay the extra carfare. They were put off by the conductor and had walked eight or nine blocks before getting as far as the park.

Madeline was footsore and mad at Eddie. Ellen cried into Eddie's clean handkerchief - another boy comes along with a car; Madeline coos at him and he takes her along to the dance. Eddie rails at all perfidious women going over again and again, the strikes fate made against him that

An electric mixer and electric clock were presented to the newlyweds as a group gift from those present.

A buffet lunch and dancing round-up Those present included the bride and groom: Mrs. V. Dillon, Mrs. O. Genereux, Miss M. Dagenais, Mr. and Mrs. W. Allen Mr. and Mrs. Bill Gulka; Mr. and Mrs. T. Galbraith, Mr. Ray Montrose, Miss Bowman, Mr. and Mrs. F. Sicoli; Mr. George Wallace, Mr. Talentino and other fellow workers.

Birthday Party

Carlo Cattarello Junior marked his twelfth birthday on April 20th by a grand party at his home on Main St., S. Porcupine.

Yellow and green streamers decorated the table, each streamer indicating a place card. Before the birthday sit-down supper the guests played games.

Although Carlo was the recipient of many very nice gifts the unusual idea of each guest receiving a gift was carried out. A present for each child was placed at his seat at the table and wrapped.

The "door prize" was won by Jack O'Grady. Present at the party were: Jack Costello, Pat O'Grady, Robert Bishop, Vito de Cario, Jerry Cario, Luigi Frustaglio, Danny Belisle, Jack O'Grady, Gino Cudari, Charlie Gazzola, Gus Ferrigan, Sherman Ferrigan. Girls present were his sister Sandra Cattarello and Norma Campagnola.

A banquet preceded a presentation of a mantel radio a group gift from all present. Speeches etc were in order, to which Mr. Kemsley fittingly replied.

There were many who attended this affair.

Rev. Scott Resigns

The Rev. R. J. Scott announced to his congregation on Sunday night, that he was resigning his charge at S. Porcupine United Church at the end of his term. Rev. Scott has been in S. Porcupine as minister of the United Church for five years, and in that time has endeared himself to many both within and outside his congregation and will be much missed. He will not be leaving until the summer and at present is undecided as to his future field of service. While here Mr. Scott has been the foundation laid of a bigger and better church, the basement of which has been used for the past two or three years for the services of the church.

FINE WRITER WRITES

To The Advance, Sir,

Thank you for the Gratton O'Leary piece, which I read with interest.

I was naturally more interested in what he said about the arts. And I'm afraid I found it disappointing. Why it should be considered necessary for every Canadian novel to be "the great Canadian novel." God only knows. Nobody says that France and England have no literature because there is no "great English novel," or "great French novel."

Also, no mention of Fridolin, Germaine Guevremont, Earle Birney and a great many poets; and it occurred to me as strange to have our whole varied body of painting passed over entirely.

However, the piece is a very fair sample of Canadiana. Talking of one of the most stimulating countries in the world, it was in the character.

All best wishes, HUGH MACLENNAN, 1575 Summerhill Avenue, Montreal, 29450.

NOTE: - Mr. MacLennan is the author of Canada's best selling book, "Two Solitudes." The story portrays the control of the French priest over his parish, the big English business men making much money, young Frenchmen hiding in the woods during the war, the gulf between the French and English—Canada's most authentic story. Canadian libraries usually contain two to six copies of it.

In the above letter, Mr. MacLennan is referring to "The Canadian Scene," by Gratton O'Leary, of the Ottawa Journal, writing for the London (England) Times, Canadian edition, March 1950. This:

"Canadian scientists equal the world's best—as witness the great atomic development at Chalk River—and in medicine and law Canadians are sometimes world famous. "But Canadian writing lags. The 'Great Canadian novel,' the novel with the 'feel' of Canada, has yet to come. Gabrielle Roy's 'Tin Flute,' with its picture of life's grimness in Montreal's slums, was authentic; and Hugh MacLennan's 'Two Solitudes' showed with honesty the religious and racial gulf between the French and English. Little else has been distinguished." —Ed.
