Scanning

Lance and Vera Pocock have shared many items of family memorabilia and documents of the family of their friend, Reginald Smith, with the TTHS. Reg died in 2010 but his great-great grandfather Isaac Smith b. 1779 NJ. M. Elisabeth Pettit 1804 purchased Trafalgar Township's lot 34, Concession 1, S.D.S. in 1809 (present day north half of Bronte creek Provincial Park, south of Dundas and above Upper middle if it were extended) . In 1831 the 200 acres went to his grandparents, John Dorland Smith with his new wife, Margaret Book Walker. In 1890 the land was left to their son, John Walker Smith m. Victoria Keturah Inglehart on the condition he pay $300 to each of his sisters Elizabeth Harrison, Almira Hager (Addison), Amanda McLaren (David) and to Walter Almond Hager ,& Ada Jane Hager a legacy of $300 (these were the children of sister Maria who must have died) to be divided equally between them. The land continued in the family in 1918 going to sons John Russell Smith and Arthur Albert Smith. John Sold his 100 acres to Trafalgar Township and Arthur with his wife Mabel Bridgman continued on the land till selling it to the Province in 1971. The Smith family had come to the Niagara/Grimsby area from New Jersey as United Empire Loyalists by 1787. The family was very large with relations to the Wilcox, Biggar, Pettit, Walker, Inglehart, Bridgman and Nixon families. The land was taken for Bronte Creek Provincial Park in 1971 but even after moving to Tremaine Rd. at that time, Reg threw nothing out. I took photographs and/or scanned the items and documents and have been working away to upload them into our digital collection. There is a wonderful chest that had been made for John Durlan (or Dorland) Smith from wood and covered with hide that contained eyeglasses and their cases - in particular, a pince-nez with an ear hook and a wooden case carved specifically for it, a large scrap book made on linen for John D.'s grandson, Arthur Albert Smith, children's books including a "Public School Drawing Course" book from Palermo School that had belonged to Arthur, a Robert Simpson Company Spring & Summer 1901" catalogue, family photographs and more.

To commemorate this family and their Palermo connections, our digital collection has the photographs connected by the "group" called "John D. Smith Family, Palermo". It will be some time yet before all is added to this digital collection. Submitted by Anne Choate Little

Queries

I have come across someone called "Buddy" Killer who our church history says lost his life in the war. His mother was Mrs. E. N. Killer. There is no mention of him on the Knox church commemorative plaques. It sounds like he may have been killed in the First World War. Anyone know who this would be?

In response to the query in our last newsletter about the Bronte Dairy, Sandy Bray writes.... As far as I know, the Bronte Dairy was in a small building right across the street from where I know work (Heaneys Barbershop - 100 Bronte Rd). The building is on the List of Properties of Heritage Interest / Value and currently a Jewelry store.

Forbes Murder- Written by Alan Norton

Prudence & Alex Forbes

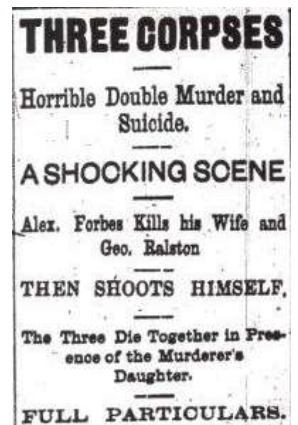

Prudence Norton 1843-1882 was the 4th of eight children of John Norton & Elizabeth Clark of Tapleystown, Saltfleet Twp., Wentworth Co. Three of her siblings, Louisa, Hiram and Demarius married Wilkinson siblings of Palermo, Trafalgar Twp. Halton Co. They were Robert, Elizabeth and James "Andy" respectively. It is family lore that Hiram Norton, the two times great grandfather of the author Alan Norton, was a hired hand of Francis Wilkinson and Clarissa Simons and that is how he met their daughter Elizabeth. They married in 1867. How he got to be in Palermo is not known, a distance of 35 kilometres. Interestingly though, Robert W and Louisa N married in 1865. So who actually first made the Wilkinson-Norton connection and where is open to speculation. But obviously there was a close relationship between the two families, regardless of the distance which likely took 3 or 4 hours by horseback.

Prudence, the 4th Norton to be connected to Palermo, was married to Alex Forbes about 1864 in Hamilton, Canada West. Very little was known of Prudence's life however, for today's family historians. This all changed very dramatically in October of 2009 thanks to the author's fourth cousin, Catherine Richards of Saskatoon, Saskatchewan. She was able to determine that a Prudence Forbes had been killed in Hamilton, Ontario in June of 1882. Further investigation in the Hamilton Spectator archives by Alan Norton at Burlington Library, showed that she had been shot to death by her husband Alex Forbes. He also murdered Prudence's employer George Ralston before taking his own life. The date was 21 June 1882.

From the first article on 22 June 1882 it became immediately apparent that this was Prudence Norton, sister of Louisa, Hiram and Demarius. As stated in the newspaper, Prudence's father John Norton had been visiting her only an hour before and while on his way home to Tapleystown was overtaken at Bartonville by someone on horseback with the horrible news that his daughter had been shot and killed.

Over the course of three days, in detail to rival today's sensationalist reporting, the Hamilton Spectator carried the story. On Thursday 22 June 1882 the headline was: "THREE CORPSES. Horrible Double Murder and Suicide. A SHOCKING SCENE.

In reading the articles, Alan Norton was able to confirm Prudence's family lineage and find information pertaining to herself and her children.

- . Prudence was the daughter of John Norton of Tapleystown and had a sister connected with Walker's confectionary store on King Street west.
- . Alexander "Sandy" Forbes was the son of Alexander Forbes Sr. and lived with his father in Hamilton until he married Prudence Norton.
- . After marriage, Forbes and Prudence removed to Palermo and carried on a potash factory, which they later sold and moved to the USA.
- . Prudence and Alex Forbes had lived in Pittsburgh and Erie, Pennsylvania.
- . Prudence and her children had left their home in Allegheny, New York as a result of her husband Alexander Forbes' continued drinking and ill treatment.
- . She had been separated from her husband for about six years at the time of the killings.

- . The house where the murders took place was on Bold St. at the rear of Central School.
- . She had been employed by Mr. Ralson for about six months as a housekeeper and nanny.
- . There were three Forbes children - a daughter Kate and two boys Erney (sic) and Willy.
- . Kate was recorded as both 17 and 19 years of age at the time. Ernie was 9 and Willy 7.
- . Kate Forbes was living with Mr. Bateman on Victoria Avenue at the time of the murders.
- . The verdict of the coroner's jury was that Prudence's murder was premeditated.
- . Prudence was buried at Tapleystown.

The Spectator's 23 June 1882 morning paper carried the following death notice for Prudence Forbes:

"DIED. FORBES - In this city, on Wednesday, the 21st inst, Prudence Forbes, aged 37 years, second eldest daughter of John Norton, Esq. of Tapleystown.

Funeral will start at 10am from 71 Cathcart street north on Friday, the 23d inst, for Tapleystown M. E. Church. Friends and acquaintances will please accept this notice."

In the summer of 2010, Debbie Havens, great granddaughter of Kate Forbes visited the author in Burlington, from her Colorado home. Debbie had been unaware of the tragedy surrounding her two times great grandparents until Alan Norton's investigation the year before. The author was able to show Debbie where the murders took place and the locations where the bodies now lay - Prudence in Tapleystown Cemetery beside her mother and father, while Alexander is in Hamilton Cemetery, in an unmarked grave.

From any indications in Debbie's family, her great grandmother Kate Forbes was a kind loving woman but not surprisingly, never discussed having witnessed the violent death of her mother Prudence. The author has never been able to ascertain where the Forbes potash factory was in Palermo and would welcome any information from readers.

Church On The Hill- Written by Ross Wark

Primitive Methodist Connexion Church
1848-1914

There has been a church presence in the community of Drumquin since 1823. A sturdy log structure, located across Trafalgar Road from the current Bethel United Church, served as a schoolhouse. Community meeting place, and Methodist church.

In 1848, a frame building called the Primitive Methodist Connexion Church was constructed. By 1851, land for a cemetery had been donated by John and Jane Featherston and Thomas and Mary Wise. The remains of both families rest with many early pioneers to this area of Trafalgar Twp.

Many people helped prepare and haul lumber for the new church. Trees had been cut at Howes' sawmill, while John Featherston transported the first load of timbers for this structure. After serving this community so well for many years, it was replaced in 1914 by the brick building we see today. With church union in 1925, this Methodist church became Bethel United
