

It is with deep regret, that we report the death of Alberic Patry, who was accidentally drowned while fishing at White Sand Lake on Sunday, June 17th. Alberic was employed as a Lancer in the Steam Department until the time of his death.

It is with equal sorrow that we report the untimely death of James Geary who was accidentally killed in the Schreiber Railway yards on Monday, June 18th. Until very recently, Jim was employed in Terrace Bay as a Raw Materials Unloader in the Services Department. The "News" joins with his many friends in expressing deepest sympathy to his son Don of the Pulp Department and to the other members of his family.

Two snowy-haired old ladies jouncing along in an antiquated automobile, made an illegal turn on the town's main street. The traffic cop had to blow his whistle vigorously and repeatedly before they came to a stop. "Didn't you hear my whistle, lady?" he asked.

Wide-eyed and innocent the little lady looked at him. "Yes, indeed," she said, but I never flirt while driving."

LONGLAC'S SAFE DAYS CONTINUE

The LongLac safe day total, as we go to press, stands at 163. This puts consecutive safe man hours near the 615,000 mark and gives us a frequency rate for 1951 of 3.10:

While this a very good experience, once again we would like to stress the fact that only as each LongLac employee continues to be on the alert all the time, will it be possible for this safe run to continue.

A MILLION SAFE MAN HOURS is the objective we are now trying to achieve. To reach it will be a real accomplishment.

A young lawyer was presenting his first case in court. It was a simple damage suit of a farmer against a railroad company whose train had killed 24 of his hogs, but the young lawyer was trying to dramatize it.

"Just think, gentlemen, 24 hogs," he stated impressively. "Twenty-four! That's twice the number there are on the jury!"

A young couple was visiting the maternal grandparents of their two-year-old son. After a week had elapsed, it was time to go home.

"Why don't you leave him with me?" asked the grandfather. "We'll give him everything his heart desires."

"It's alright with me," replied the father. "He's crazy about big, new, shiny automobiles."
