

SEEKING A FORTUNE? (Cont.)

Most privately owned lands are not open. although there are some cases where surface rights only have been granted and the mineral rights may be open.

Areas laid out in townsites, switching grounds, station grounds, railway rights-of-way, water powers capable of producing at least 150 horsepower, or lands acquired in the public interest, or set aside for special use, are not open for staking. Lands in Indian Reserves may be staked but permission must be obtained from the local Indian Agent and such claims are recorded with the Indian Affairs Branch at Ottawa.

There are a number of townships in the Clay Belt south of Kirkland Lake that are both potential farm lands and potential mining lands. By special arrangement, mining claims here are limited to mining rights only, in order that the soil may remain open for homesteading.

The beds of the Great Lakes were withdrawn from staking 1912. In most Provincial Parks, which have been set aside for the enjoyment of the public prospecting is not normally permitted.
