said it was a pleasure and an honour to make this presentation. The graduates may or may not have a technical library of books, in either case it was a pleasure said Mr. Johnson, to begin or add to that library.

The certificates of graduation were signed by J. T. Whelan, Chief Engineer of the Kimberly-Clark Corporation, who unfortunately could not be present at the dinner. Mr. Johnson stated that he knew the graduates would be proud of their certificates, however, they only represented the knowledge the graduates had gained, which knowledge could not be taken away. Mr. Johnson thanked the graduates for their efforts.

Adam Zyri, on behalf of himself and Walter Janicki, then thanked the LongLac Pulp and Paper Company for their progressive approach in providing this program. Both graduates were proud to be the first graduates of the course who had started from "scratch" said Adam. Both graduates, said Adam, would do their best as tradesmen, so as to maintain the support and faith of all concerned in the Junior Tradesmen Program.

Adam thanked Joe Wig, Ken Hutchinson, the Advisory Committee, and all the Supervisors who had helped to make the Junior Tradesman Program the success that it is.

H. C. Laundry, Personnel Superintendent, gave the opening address. Mr. Laundry congratulated the graduates for successfully completing the course, and he also congratulated the Engineering Department on adding trained men to the staff. Mr. Laundry stated that the graduates would be proud of their accomplishment. Their successful completion of the course had given them the ability to add to their earning power and gave them the knowledge with which to seek further learning and accomplishments in their chosen trade.

Mr. E. Reeb, Director of Guidance, Fort William Collegiate Institute, then delivered the Graduation address. Mr. Reeb also congratulated the graduates on their success, and wished them future success and happiness in their chosen field. Mr. Reeb gave the graduates and guests many examples in regard to successful participation in the business world of today.

To the graduates, he compared their future years as successful tradesmen, to the players of a winning hockey team. To achieve success each player of the team must adhere to three rules. They must give loyalty to the team; they must co-operate at all times with the coach; they must seek continuous self improvement.

G. G. R. Johnson, Assistant Chief Engineer of the Kimberly-Clark Corporation of Neenah, Wisconsin, then presented to the graduates on behalf of the LongLac Pulp and Paper Company, their certificates of graduation and tradesmen handbooks. Mr. Johnson
