

LIBRARY NEWSThe Golden Nightmare - Walter Snow

One of the Balzac Jones murder story series. Mr. Jones is a fine arts restorer who finds himself involved through his Polish wife in an intricate affair which covers art, smuggling, murder and Communist politics.

This story provides a good insight in art, fraud and the underground conspiracy of our times.

My Turn to Make The Tea - Monica Dickens

The author of "No More Meadows" has written this highly entertaining autobiography covering her works as a reporter for a small English newspaper - her life in the drab boarding house at 5 Berry Road - and her unsuccessful attempts to introduce the woman's view point to the columns of this small town newspaper. A very excellent work in the opinion of this reviewer.

NOTE: We are again appealing to the borrowers with overdue books to please make a special effort to return them. Although there was a good response to our previous notice there are still 86 books outstanding some for as long a period as a year. We are making this a special appeal as we would like to have these books for the new Library.
