LIBRARY NEWS

Below are reviews of four of the new books. However, they will not be available until the new library opens.

The Desperate Hours - Joseph Hayes

The nightmare started when three escapees from a Federal prison chose the Hilliard residence as a hideout. What transpires during their stay and how the story builds up to a dramatic climax make this none the best and most exciting suspense story your reviewer has had the pleasure to read.

The Royal Box - Frances Parkinson Keyes

The author of Joy Street and many good novels. Her latest novel although a trifle wordy in spots will no doubt hold your interest to the very end. The past lives of its many characters unfold in a most surprising manner after a murder is committed in their midst.

Soldiers of Fortune - Ernest K. Gann

Mr. Gann, author of the High and the Mighty has again written an excellent adventure tale. The setting of the story is in intrigue-ridden Hong Kong of today. Jane Hoyt comes to Hong Kong in search of her wild and irresponsible Irish husband who is presumed to have died in Red China. There she meets Hank Lee an American expatriate and a notorious black marketeer and many other interesting characters who help her in the search.

Mary Anne - Daphne du Maurier

The fascinating story of the author's great-great grandmother, the fabulous Mary Anne Clarke who in the early 1800's sparked the liveliest scandal ever to rock the House of Commons.
