LAFF A LITTLE

The Scot was heatedly contesting the amount of his fare with the train conductor. Out of patience, the conductor snatched up the Scot's suitcase and tossed it off just as the train was crossing a bridge. The case landed with a splash.

"Hoot mon!" screamed McTavish. "First ye try to rob me and now you have drowned me boy."

Too much pressure can be put on a sales force, as is indicated by the following:

A clothing store was doing its best to clean out its stock of leftovers. There was one suit that was an absolute nightmare. It was perfectly tailored and cut from material of the finest quality, but the predominant colors were green, purple and orange.

So as he was going out to lunch one day, the proprietor called his assistant and said: "Sam, we gotta get rid of that suit. See if you can't figure something to do about it, while I'm gone."

Well, when he got back about an hour later, he found to his amazed delight that the suit had been sold, but the store was a wreck and so was Sam. A whole rack of clothing had been overturned. A showcase was broken. Sam's face and hands were cut and bleeding, and his suit was in shreds.

"Good Heavens, Sam", said the proprietor, "What happened? Did you have to force that suit on the customer?"

"Oh no," said Sam, he didn't object at all, but I sure had one heck of a scrap with his seeing-eye dog."
