TENNIS NEWS

Wednesday evening, July 27th, the tennis fever that has gripped our community of late went right thru the top when a double match was run off between Hugh Boudreau-Dick Jones versus Al Pattison-John Jeanneret.

With claims and counter-claims the order of the day this past week, these two doubles teams were victims of their own enthusiasm to such an extent that the match had to be staged so that one or the other would justify their extravagant claims.

Coming from behind, the Boudreau-Jones aggregation proved their superiority by breaking thru their opponents' services times and again and retaliating with thunderous volleys and placement smashes to windup on the long end of an 8-6 score. Undaunted and unconvinced, the Pattison-Jeanneret combination requested the match be extended to a "best of 10" affair and again the previous victors came through to end the match 10-8.

Anyone desiring to challenge the winning team are asked to contact either player.
