HOME AND SCHOOL ASSOCIATION

Members of the Schreiber and Terrace Bay Home and School Associations turned out full force Monday evening, Dec. 5th, in Terrace Bay High School Auditorium to hear Dr. S. R. Laycock, a national figure in the Home and School Associations, and well-known as lecturer in the classroom, his writings, radio and television. Dr. Laycock's enthusiasm reached out and captured his audience on all topics he spoke on: the Home and School Association; his love and understanding of children and their problems; parents and the teaching profession and their problems.

Starting with a description of what we expect in a mentally healthy and well-rounded adult, he began with the infant and how love and understanding right from birth makes for a wholesome personality in the adult. Dr. Laycock maintains there is no such thing as a troublesome child, only a troubled child, and parents and teachers alike should seek the cause. A well-trained teacher inspires rather than antagonizes the child, and a parent with a wholesome personality gives understanding to their children from the demon-explorer, the two-year old with their intense curiosity; the four year old with their seeking of inner control, the four to six in their world of make-believe; the six to twelve who seek mainly a sense of achievement; and the adolescent trying to establish a sense of identity. Dr. Laycock felt the discussion of these problems are the main purpose of the Home and School Association,
