THE ANGRY MOUNTAIN - Hammond Innes

We wish to express our sincere thanks, to the Nurses and Bill Jones at Terrace Bay Hospital who were so kind to our daughter, Ginny during her stay in the hospital.

Deug. and Barb. May

o-o-o

This novel is one of the earlier works by the author of The Mary Dease. Dick Farrel, an ex-bomber pilot drifts from one job to another trying to forget the pain of a senseless operation performed by a sadistic doctor while a prisoner of war in Italy, and the shame of something that destroyed his self respect. In Prague, on a business trip he is swept into a nightmare of the past. A fast moving story of intrigue that builds up to an exciting climax where all persons involved are trapped in a small town by the eruption of Vesuvius.

ART CLUB NEWS

"To have reached the age of 40 without ever handling a brush or fiddling with a pencil, and then suddenly to find oneself plunged in the middle of a new and intense form of interest and action with paints and palette and canvases, and not to be discouraged by results, is an astonishing and enriching experience. I hope it may be shared by others."

Winston Churchill wrote this many years ago, and he wasn't talking through his cigar!

You can paint - anybody can! And, if you make a mistake - so what? Just scrape off the paint with your palette
