NOTICE

I would like to thank all the nurses for the wonderful care given to me during my illness, and a special thanks to Dr. McCausland and Mrs. Buck.

Fred and I also wish to thank all our many friends who sent gifts, cards, or who helped out with the children or in any other way.

Sincerely,
 Clara and Fred Gould.

LIBRARY NEWS

THE TREMBLING HILLS by Phillis A. Whitney.

The "hills" are San Francisco, and the year is 1906 - at the time of the Great Fire. Sara's mother would never tell her about her father, and Sara is determined to seek out her paternal heritage. Convinced somehow that she belongs to an important family of San Francisco, she insists that her mother accompany her to this famous city to claim her rightful place. Mystery surrounds her at every turn, and after establishing her claim as the niece of socially prominent and wealthy Hester Varady, she finally connects the missing links and her mother's mysterious past is revealed.

THE ELK AND THE EVIDENCE by Margaret Shcerf

What would you do if you found a human toe in an elk roast that had been given to you by a friend? The Reverend Martin Buell was surprised, to say the least. And when Catherine Collins peeked out of her train berth and saw a dead man sitting below her, she was convinced that foul play had taken place. All of these clues lead to murder, but no one could find the body that fitted the toe. An amusing and lightly written mystery story.
