Fire originates from many causes but the following are responsible for about 75% of all home fires:

- 1. Carelessness in smoking and use of matches, 2. Defective or improperly operated or installed heating equipment, 3. Defective or improperly used electrical equipment and overloaded circuits, 4. Defective or improperly operated cooking equipment and, 5. Misuse of flammable liquids.

Careless Smoking and Matches

Careless smoking and the careless use of matches are chief among fire hazards. These are responsible for 1 out of 4 home fires -- yet a few simple precautions may guard against them.

Smoking - Never smoke in bed. Likewise if you feel at all drowsy in a chair while smoking put the "smoke" out.

- Use only noncombustible ash trays that are of adequate size and designed to prevent lighted cigarettes from falling out.

- Never empty ash trays with smoldering cigarettes, cigars or pipe ashes in a wastebasket.

- Before going to bed, check all rooms to make sure no one has left a cigarette, cigar or pipe burning anywhere.

Matches and Lighters - Children and lighters or matches don't mix. Lighters and matches should be kept where children cannot reach them. Keep "strikeanywhere" matches in a covered metal container on a high shelf and avoid leaving "book" matches where tiny hands can play with them.

- It is a dangerous practice to use matches for illumination in attics, closets or similar dark spots.

- When you discard a match be sure that it has stopped smoking and is out. Break or bend each match in half when discarding it.

- Remove matches from the pockets of stored clothing.

- "Safety" matches are the least hazardous.

Neither the match nor the cigarette is really to blame for terrible fires. The real blame belongs to man himself -- his carelessness.
