Welcome Curlers

The Terrace Bay Curling Club's 13th Annual Bonsel gets underway officially on Thursday evening at 6:30 P.M.

Due to the Mill maintenance shutdown a few of the local rinks start early, with a 7:00 P.M. draw Wednesday night.

Thirty-two rinks from as far west as Dryden, as far east as Chapleau and even as far south as Duluth will be trying for the prizes in this annual four-day event.

A banquet for the visiting curlers and the Club's executive will be held on Saturday evening at 6:30 P.M. in the Moose Hall.

A social in the Curling Club Lounge is planned for Saturday night. All curlers and their invited guests are welcome.

SUPERIORS BATTLING FOR NEXT JUMP

Dauphin Kings predicted three straight wins against the Thunder Bay Intermediate Champs, Terrace Bay Superiors, in the best of five series of the Western semi-finals.

They took the first game Sunday three to one but bogged down on Monday night, trailing three to two at the end of the game.

The Kings, who looked mighty good to the 1180 fans who were on hand at Sunday's game, will treat the Superior's with a great deal more respect when they meet again on Wednesday night.

The Superior's outskated and out shot the Kings on Tuesday, meeting only one staunch buttress in the person of Kachonaski in the nets. Time after time, Kachonaski ward off what appeared to be certain counters.

Tookenay and Eizensoph racked up two counters before ten minutes of play in the first period. Maxwell put the Kings right behind in the scoring at 19:27 after intercepting a pass at his own blue line and fired a shoulder high shot past Dobson from the right wing. Marvin Osmar again put Superiors ahead in the second on a set-up tailored by Lanteigne. Lawson put the Kings in the running before the period ended. Neither team scored in the third.

Marvin Osmar, who has been playing tops throughout the series, was Superior's hardest working forward. He and Lanteigne are a continual threat to the Kings.

The picking up of Eizensoph and Matthews from the Fort Frances Club has added punch and defensive stability to the Sups. The boys picked up by Superiors have fitted into the play like regulars.
