CURLING CLUB NEWS

Most of the roof steel and pipe material has been delivered for the new lounge building. Construction therefore is progressing well, but with the delivery of more material there is lots to be done in a short time if the building is going to be ready for this year's curling season.

Unfortunately the volunteer crews are not turning out as well as expected. We published a crew schedule in the paper about two weeks ago which scheduled a crew one night a week. We hoped that would work. It could work a lot better. Printed here again is the crew schedule for the balance of September. Any curler or former curler can learn what crew he is on by the lists posted at the mill.

And it would help if the crew leader would remind everyone on what nights they are scheduled for the balance of September.

As much help as the Building Committee can get is going to be required to finish this building. We hope anyone who is interested, however slightly, in curling will turn out at least one night a week and help out.
