Mr. Lee said he was amazed at the improvement made, for the most part by voluntary labor, adding that he fully realized how much initiative and support had come from the Auxiliary.

Alex Gray, guest speaker, said in part that such services as we keep on Remembrance Day should, in addition to being a formal expression of honor to the dead heroes and sympathy to their bereaved ones, also be an occasion when each one privileged to attend, searches his own soul. Mr. Gray closed his address with the words "When you go home, tell them of us and say, "For your to-morrow we gave you OUR to-day".

The event ended with a cabaret dance.
