TERRACE BAY HAS "GEM OF A CHAMBER OF COMMERCE"

When the new Low Power Transmitter for Terrace Bay is turned on officially later this spring to bring local residents CBC radio programming loud and clear all day and every day, a group of young business people in our town are going to enjoy a well-earned sense of accomplishment. Over a year ago the members of the Terrace Bay Chamber of Commerce moved this high on their agenda of projects and hammered it through to a successful conclusion. This was not all they have done. It is only one item of a large number which have made the group one of the most active in this part of Ontario.

Under strong leadership the Chamber has flourished while other similar groups have withered and died.

The work of the group was brought to the attention of citizens and Council a year ago when they teamed with representatives of the Township council to survey the town for various civic improvements. This element of co-operation with other bodies marks the unique aim of our chamber. Last year they had signs made and erected to direct tourists to the Aguasabon Gorge and presently a town sign is completed and ready to erect when a suitable location is found. Under planning too, is a tourist paper designed to interest visitors in stopping over in Terrace Bay.

Before long the Dept. of Highways, along with the Dept. of Lands and Forests will be surveying the Hydro Hill area with a view to establishing a better and safer scenic lookout. The Chamber will be able to take credit for this idea when it comes to pass. The group, also, is represented in the Upper Lake Superior Travel Council and is helping to prepare its new booklet.

In 1963 the Area Conference of the Chamber of Commerce was brought to Terrace Bay which enabled dozens of North Western Ontario's business men to appreciate the "Gem of the North Shore," which title, by the way, is being pushed by the organization.

In its attempt to make Terrace Bay prosperous, a "Buy Locally" campaign was staged in December, and local merchants commended its definite effects. Before the civic election, the Chamber put on a "Town Hall Night" which enabled the voters to see and hear those who were running for office.

What does a Chamber of Commerce do? These are the kind of things. It builds on ideas for the good of the community and then pushes them through.

It operates through your membership and interest. Get behind it and push---for its successes mean a better town in which you and I can live.

C.W.L. FASHION SHOW

Bleak skies and whistling winds were forgotten Monday evening when the Catholic Women's League gave a showing of spring fashions, courtesy of Robinson's, in St. Martin's Parish Hall. Seated around tea tables, the guests were welcomed by Mrs. D. Kenney and her committee. Mrs. D. Whalen commentated as the models displayed an appealing array of attire for the coming spring and summer.

The very little people who, with the poise of professionals, took over the initial portion of the program were Lita and Grant MacDonald, Lynn and Ronald Cormier, Leslie and Barry Savoy, Marilyn McDonald, Glenna Valiquette, Marcia Nicol, Glen Chepelsky, Linda Helink, Paulette Duquette, Leo Legault and John Vienneau.

Easy care was the password as frocks, stretchies, sweaters and playclothes were paraded, also smart coats in laminates and all-weather reversibles. For the young man there were many outfits, both coördinates and separates.

Teenage models had a keenly discerning following among the audience as they displayed the features of the coming summer. Tones of pink seemed the most popular of the many lovely shades shown.
