TOWNSHIP NAME ATTRACTS INTEREST

Interest engendered by bearing the same name as our town has attracted several strangers into exploring the origin of 'our' Schreiber. Gilbert Schreiber of Wisconsin has been here and Mrs. Samuel Hublau and her son Daniel of Toronto. Mrs. Hublau is the former Georgette Schreiber of Nancy, France and she was interested in discovering if any relationship existed between her and Sir Collingwood Schreiber, for whom we are named.

It would seem that Mrs. Hublau and Sir Collingwood may have had grandfathers who were one of nine brothers living in Leipsieg, Germany who left home to seek their fortunes in other countries. It is known that one went to France, one to England and another to South America but the rest have not been traced. Mrs. Hublau's father was Charles Emile Schreiber.

A local stamp collector, Mrs. Ernest Willoughby, for years carried on a curious exchange with Charles Schreiber of Willoughby, Ohio--the postmarks adding much to the curio value.

Mrs. Lester McCuaig corresponds with a Heinz Schreiber of Hamburg, Germany, the letters starting when Mr. Schreiber found his name used for our town while studying a map of Canada.

A PLACE FOR THINKING SMALL

THE NATIONAL CENTENNIAL COMMISSION has a salesman on the road these days, selling the idea of centennial celebrations to Canadian communities. His name is John Fisher and his title is Commissioner.

He told an audience the other day that he hoped centennial committees in that district would think big and that the celebrations would be big and colorful. Mr. Fisher was speaking in the centre of a thickly-populated area. Presumably he would change his sales talk for a small community.

It would be recalled by those who followed in the press the cross-country progress of King George VI and Queen Elizabeth in 1939 that some of the most heart-warming and memorable pictures were those taken at the wayside stops, not on the steps of city halls.

And some of the most memorable centennial celebrations may very well be those in Canada's towns and villages. Most memorable, at least, to those who participate. There's a place for thinking small.
