with D. Rosie, Bill Hawker and Chas. Firman, these now in Fort William.

Under Floyd Caldwell's direction an old Ford Sedan was transformed into the town's first fire truck and well-served its purpose, along with the still-used hose reel, in quelling fires before they got too much headway. It also affected a drastic reduction in fire insurance rates for the town.

The town now has its modern truck, with fire fighting equipment and regular practices and study periods are held. Representatives are sent away for instruction and lecturers come to Schreiber to offer further knowledge. But, it remains a volunteer brigade, a citizens' contribution to community safety and welfare.

The brigade originally marked a successful year at a private gathering for members only, later wives and lady friends were included and then the popular public celebration of the Hallowe'en dance was inaugurated, attended by every mobile adult in town.

All proceeds go into purchasing further equipment for the brigade and holding a ticket entitles one to the door prize draw, whether present or not.
