GOLF NEWS (Continued from page 1)

Joe Adamo, the fund-raising chairman, has organized a committee to raise funds which will be set aside for the construction of the Club House.

A motion was introduced and adopted for the incorporation of the Club. The cost for this will be $450. There was some preliminary discussion on the necessity of this expense but it was unanimously accepted after Al Pattison showed the wisdom in operating as a corporation.

Ross Mitchell was instructed to contact Emil Stokaluk, the Club Pro, and greens superintendent, and find out when he would be able to begin working this spring.

The last two fairways will receive immediate attention and should be ready for us about the beginning of July. The green fees will be higher this year but still very low in comparison with other clubs.

The membership last year was much higher than expected. The low fees are based on the supposition that the membership will be approximately the same. Rates will be published in the near future.

Because of lack of time the unfinished business was postponed to the following week when another meeting will take place.
