In a brief programme the school choir and the boy's choir sang. Tributes were paid to the staff, school board, CPTA, Catholic Women's League, Father Cano and parents, by various students. The girl's choir sang a three-part song and the last will and testament of the graduates, which always delights the audience as it reveals secret traits of certain students, was read by Marilyn Cook and Barbara Stefurak.

In his address Father Cano admonished parents to consider that the foundation for a child's life and character is built in the home. It may be added to by the Church and teachers but responsibility and results lies squarely with the parents.
