

NOTICE RE 1967 TAXES

Due to some misunderstanding regarding the changes in the method of collecting taxes and discounts on same, the Council of the Township of Schreiber has been required by the Department of Municipal Affairs for Ontario, to change the method of discounts, and conform to legislation in the Municipal Act and the Assessment Act Statutes of Ontario. Only two acceptable methods were open, one, to institute an installment plan, with NO DISCOUNT, similar to the Lakehead method or, secondly, allow discounts of 1/2 percent per month up to the due date of the 1967 taxes, on July 2nd, 1967.

Council decided that the latter method would be more advantageous, both from the taxpayer discount available and also avoiding added cost resultant from a new office system.

THEREFORE the following DISCOUNTS are applicable on any amount prepaid on 1967 taxes:

3% Discount on any payment prior to February 1st, 1967.

2-1/2% Discount on any payment prior to March 1st, 1967.

2% Discount on any payment prior to April 1st, 1967.

This discount decreases 1/2 percent per month up until the 1967 tax due date on July 2nd, 1967.

Mad, mad, mad world

Ever thought of playing a fast game of aggies with 42-pound marbles?

You say no.

Well then, ever thought of whisking a broom up and down a lengthy stretch of ice at a furious pace about 40 times an hour?

What, you're still answering in the negative.

Listen my friend, just about every loyal vocalist of "O Canada" spends much of his copious free time during the winter at marbles and sweeping. I imagine by now you think I'm ready for the Funny Farm, but t'aint so.

As soon as John Frost (and often before) drops by for his long winter stay, hordes of Canadians from coast to coast grab a broom, bundle up in woolen sweaters and warm pants, and head to the closest ice palace to begin a fast game of marble tossing.

No doubt about it — curling is reaching popularity proportions never imagined in Canada by those wearers of the kilt across the sea. In fact, this marble game for adults has infected this country to the extent where Canada is the most feared and respected nation at international curling bonspiels. Our teams have swept aside more competition than the Scarlet Pimpernel and his pals did during the French Revolution.

In this day and age of the jet set and the "in" crowd, curling has become a national status symbol in Canada. No matter whether you belong to a private club or pay-as-you-play you can still show your newest broom to guests when they drop by and smile: "How's your rink doing?" Or, "How's things down at the club?" Immediately this classes you as "one of the gang" — you're in with the local lads and lassies.

When the gals gather for a game you get the feeling you're a judge at a tight pants contest. And the gals go for all the liveliest colors when selecting curling wardrobes. The fellows are more conservative, but they're steadily swinging toward off-beat colors such as mauve sweaters and chocolate brown pants.

And, if you're sweater is clustered with crests or badges you're a focal point when you step on the ice. Six crests or badges and you've become the week's conversation piece.

Usually curling bonspiels are better than a PTA gathering for catching up on the latest neighborhood gossip. If you want to find out why Jean Turnipsnip isn't drinking anymore then take up curling. You'll have the answer from 18 various sources in about 106 seconds.

It is truly amazing the game of curling is labelled as a sport. Marbles never made it and neither did whisking dust under the rug. Maybe we'll soon be able to call anyone taking part in a quick game of snap an athlete?

But no matter how much you degrade curling it's popularity continues to spread. In fact, a young friend of mine has put curling ahead of the Rolling Stones.

It most certainly is a Mad, Mad, Mad, Mad, World.
