OPENING LEAD: DIAMOND QUEEN

Responding to partner's opening bid with a very large hand of your own can be very difficult if you are strong suited. On today's deal, South has a count of 18 high card points and his partner has opened! Normal responses with the other three suits stopped are: 1NT with 6 to 10 points; 2NT with 13 to 15 points; and 3NT with 16 to 18 points. Our South makes a normal 3NT response and North is confronted with a problem. The combined point total from the bidding and from his own hand does not add up to 33, the normal amount for small slam. North chooses a rather unusual bid of 5C to show his five card suit and his intermediate strength. South can read this bid as unusual and takes the partnership to slam in no trump. The slam is unbeatable as South wins the diamond in his own hand and eventually loses the king of hearts on the finesse. When this hand was actually played almost all pairs went on to six hearts rather than the no trump game. One unfortunate pair had a mixup in bidding when the North player thought his partner's three no trump bid was a gambling-type three no bid and left his partner at that level. be a tie with the Tom Yandon rink and Herb Legault each with a four ender. They won the Carling glasses and decided to split the glasses among the eight team players.

Each team received prizes and a very pleasant time was spent by all. The bonspiel wound up with a buffet lunch and social hour. A sing song with guitar music by Peter Legault and R. Spencer was enjoyed.

EXPO-HERE WE COME! By Marlyn MacDonald

It seems everyone in the world is going to Expo except Canadians. The Grade 8 class of St. Martin's realize the educational potential and hope to make the trip. Several money making schemes have been discussed and the first will be a Baby-sitting Agency to operate during Easter holidays. Students have agreed on 25¢ an hour and 50¢ after midnight. Anyone wishing our services is asked to phone 3625. A beer bottle drive is also in process and if the trip does not materialize, the money will go to charity.
