MY TWIN SISTER

When I was laying in my bed,
I heard a wriggle or two,
And as I turned to see who it was,
It was another one named Lue.

And as the years went flying by,
She looked more like myself,
And I'd get into trouble when
She messed up all myself.

When I went to parties and things,
She'd tell whatever I'd do
She'd even keep a note of it,
And show it when I was blue.

What a sister I would think,
And as I gled she's gone,
She's married to a stupid man
A foolish man named John.
