

A RICHER WORLD OF MUSIC

Parents are the only hope a child has of learning music. Schools don't require it and children are too young to know what it means to them in later life.

Parents often ask "Is it all worth while?" "Is it worth the money and effort?" "Will it pay off in future pleasure?" Absolutely and Positively Yes!

Your child is certain to get some familiarity with music that will gratify him in later life, and if he learns to play the instrument well, he is storing up for himself a life time of pleasure and achievement

Music is an important part of an education, Reading, writing, arithmetic and music, is the richest combination that can be offered to assure a full wholesome life.

Morrow Piano people are ready to assist you in any way to enjoy A Richer World of Music
