tried this year, with three male teachers, in grades 7 and 8 with the plan to include grade 6 and possibly grade 5 next year.

The teacher exchange and team teaching is an interesting experiment this year, as is the unit system preparation, which is a theme or topical experiment in readiness for a future ungraded programme.

Mr. Cressman will devote half of his time to teaching and half to administration, and monthly meetings are scheduled for K-3, 4-6 and 7-8 to discuss new techniques, common problems and other school matters.

Visits by the Principal and others of the staff will be made to area centres to study new programmes presently innovated, and considerable class participation in enterprise and excursions is being planned.
