TODAY'S CHILD

John was shyly watchful when the photographer saw him, as he is with most strangers. But this two-year-old soon becomes happy and laughing. This little boy has big brown eyes, auburn hair and fair skin that tans well. He is developing at an average rate, though he was a slow starter. He says quite a few words and loves to provoke laughter by comical antics. He is a good-natured, cheerful child unless frustrated in his main desire — to be outdoors. If he must stay in he reconciles himself by playing with his toy monkey which he calls ki-ki. He needs affectionate, active parents who will enjoy a sunny-tempered little boy. To inquire about adopting John please write to Today's Child, Department of Social and Family Services, Parliament Buildings, Toronto 182. For general information about adoption ask your Children's Aid Society.
