THOUGHT OF THE WEEK

As a simple, unpretentious admirer of fine art, Elbert Hubbard derived much pleasure from visiting the great art galleries. One day he was admiring a priceless painting in a New York gallery when a friend chidingly remarked, "Elbert, why do you allow yourself to become so enthused over things you can never afford to own?"

"Harry," replied the sage of East Aurora, "I would rather be able to appreciate things I cannot have than to have things I am not able to appreciate."

1969-70 EVALUATION SYSTEM

During the 1969-70 school year, Schreiber High School students will be evaluated on day-to-day work rather than scheduled examinations. It is believed that the daily measure of a student's performance is more valid than that of a "pressured" examination period. The day-to-day work will include: classroom participation; projects; tests; notebooks and oral presentations.

Reports will be issued in October, January, April and June. In some subjects the final mark will be the average of the marks received in the four terms. In other subjects the total of the marks received in the first three terms plus twice the mark received in the final term will be divided by five to obtain the final mark. Either system requires that a student work steadily throughout the school year rather than "cramming" for examinations. Regular attendance and satisfactory progress in each term is required in order for a student to have a successful year.

The elimination of examinations is one of the many transitional steps being taken towards a more "individual oriented" educational program which
