Brian looks as if he'd like to jump right out of that walker and take off on his own. It won't be long till he can, because this little boy, not yet 11 months old, can walk now if he has something to hold onto. Brian is a wiry, bouncy youngster with big dark eyes, brown hair, medium complexion and an entrancing grin showing his fine new teeth. He is a happy young fellow who enjoys other children and loves exploring, especially in cupboards. This little boy has allergies which make him susceptible to wheezy colds and for which he is on a milk-free diet. Other than that he eats everything. He is always good-natured and he needs parents who will not be troubled by his diet restrictions or by his sometimes raspy breathing. To inquire about adopting Brian please write to Today's Child, Department of Social and Family Services, Parliament Buildings, Toronto 182.
