

Children on Christmas - cont'd from page 3 youngsters 12 and under to send in their Christmas pictures, from which the designs for Canada's 1970 Christmas stamps will be selected.

From a quick glance over some of the drawings received so far, the timeless Christmas associations - the brotherhood of men, the joy of giving, the warmth of family love, and their traditional religious and social symbols - seem to be uppermost in the minds of children, even in 1969. Yet, in their pictures, they casually combine these ageless themes with today's and tomorrow's realities - such as two suited astronauts celebrating a lunar Christmas, or a Biafran child alongside a lucky little boy opening gifts under his Christmas tree.

Elementary schools across the country have been working on the project in recent weeks. Little six year old Sean, from St. Lambert Elementary in Montreal really summed up the magical meaning of Christmas to a child: - "Perhaps you could say it's Nonsense Land. You see, Christmas is rather a Nonsense Land. Nobody knows quite what Christmas is all about, actually .. it's about many things. It's about Jesus being born, that's one thing, but it's about many other things too. Perhaps you could just say it's like a lovely Nonsense Land."

"I want to return my wife's present"

Wishing all our relatives and friends a Happy and Prosperous New Year.
