GODIN-McPARLAND WEDDING - continued from page 5

saying Grace and John Small proposing the toast to the bride.
 For the reception the mother of the bride chose a dress in orange ice crepe with full sleeves of chiffon, matching accessories, and corsage of white carnations.

The groom's mother wore a two piece dress in pale yellow, metallic, with matching accessories and corsage of white carnations.

For their honeymoon to Jamaica, the bride travelled in a dress pant suit of navy and red with a red rose corsage. They will make their home in Barrie, Ont. 13 Queen St.

Prior to her wedding the bride was entertained at a shower in St. John's Church hall in Schreiber.

Among the many from out of town attending the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. W. Spicer, Port Hope, Mr. and Mrs. J. Deven and Colleen Deven of Eganville, Mr. and Mrs. John Stertini, Sault Ste. Marie, Mr. and Mrs. G. Ramsay, Terrace Bay, Bill Scott, Red Rock, Mr. and Mrs. John McParland, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Gordon and Miss Wendy Fontaine of Thunder Bay, Dennis McParland of Dryden and Miss Doris McParland of Calgary.

TEACHING JOBS WERE FEW, SO LISTOWEL GIRL HEADED NORTH - AND FOUND A FRIENDLY LIFE - Taken from The Toronto Star

Wendy MacEwen, a 20 year old brunette from Listowel, was all set to launch a teaching career near her hometown last year until a teacher surplus shut the door.

So she headed the call of the department of education and went north.

North is this town of 2,050 people on the north shore of Lake Superior, where the winters are long and it's 20 below zero when you go to school.

Wendy came here to teach at the public school last September. Her initial reaction ("I felt like I would like to turn around and go back. It looked like a dump.") has given way to enthusiasm for the friendliness of the townspeople and the outdoor living.

Brenda Langille, a pretty 19 year old friend of Wendy's, who graduated with Wendy last year from Stratford Teachers' College, also found that jobs were scarce and accepted an offer over the phone to teach Grade 4 in Terrace Bay, a picturesque little company town about 190 miles east of Thunder Bay on the North Shore of Lake Superior.

"I had no idea where I was going," she says, "but at least it was a job."

Wendy wrote a letter to the same board and was hired to teach in Schreiber, nine miles down the winding, wind-swept highway from Terrace Bay.

Today the two girls share a $70 a-month one-bedroom cottage in Schreiber and say they wouldn't miss the experience for anything.

For Wendy, part of the experience included owning the only convertible in town.

After going home for Thanksgiving, the girls found they were out of circulation and that their place was no longer home. "It wasn't so bad up here after that," says Brenda.

Teaching in the north is more relaxed, the girls say. The average class has about 25 pupils, compared to southern schools where many classes have over 30. The schools are well-equipped with audio-visual aids.

Although teachers employed by the Lake Superior Board of Education do not qualify for the $1,000 "isolation pay" provided by the Department of Education for some northern teachers, the starting salary is $5,400. In Merto the starting salary is $5,200.

At Wendy's 210 pupil Schreiber Public School, the 29 year-old principal, Bob Cressman, drives a snowmobile to and from school and insists that everyone be on a first-name basis. The local minister drives the school bus. It's that kind of town.

Schreiber also has a separate school, a high school, four churches, the CPR and a dying zinc mine. The nearest movie house and bowling alley are in Terrace Bay. There is no Friday night dance, but for anyone interested in skiing, skating, hiking, curling, ice fishing, snowmobiling or watching hockey games the prospect of keeping busy is bright indeed.

Most of the teachers are young and many of the senior high school students are the same age as the girls, so they have lots of friends.
