Jamie is a happy toddler, as you can guess from his friendly smile. At 15 months, this little fellow of Ukrainian descent is a very busy boy, almost always on the go. He's walking, though not entirely steadily yet, has learned to climb stairs and is fast probing the mysteries of all the cupboards and drawers in his foster home. He can say a few words and understands a lot and he enjoys games like hide and seek and peekaboo.

Jamie is used to other children and loves their company. Indeed he loves any company, having recovered from a shy period. If there are no people around, he plays happily with the family dog. He is responsive to music, bouncing up and down when he hears it.

This laddie needs parents who want a healthy, lively, lovable young son. To inquire about adopting Jamie, please write to Today's Child, Department of Social and Family Services, Parliament Buildings, Toronto 182. For general option information, ask your Children's Aid Society.

A cool glass of sweet lemonade with a pinch or two of salt added is a great favorite for summer.
