The millions of microscopic cells in Western Red Cedar retard heat transmission. Three inches of cedar has insulating qualities equal to 21 inches of masonry.

The home handyman should remember to pile his lumber at least six inches above the ground and protect it with a waterproof cover.

Nine out of ten homes in this country are of wood frame construction. Some of the oldest existing buildings in Canada are of this type.

When laying Western Red Cedar shingles or shakes, mark the handle of your hammer for a fast accurate measurement of the shingle exposure.
