Vougirard where we were to spend the next ten days. That evening we were taken on a very rewarding night tour of Paris. We saw such sights as the Arc de Triomphe, the Eiffel Tower, the place where Marie Antoinette was beheaded, and Notre Dame Cathedral. The next few days were free for group activities. Most of us familiarized ourselves with the subway system, so as to make our stay less confusing. In our free time we sat in the sun in the various sidewalk cafes throughout Paris, and visited the many points of interests. Among these were the Latin Quarter, the Flea Market, and the boat trip on the Seine.

On Friday we went to the Place de Versailles and Fontainebleau. Both were breathtaking with their painted ceilings giving the legend of the rooms. We saw Napoleon's bed, hat and a lock of his hair. Also, on one of our tours we visited the Louvre, where paintings of Rembrandt, De Vinci and many other famous artists were displayed.

The trip as a whole was beneficial to our education, not to mention fun. It is quite impossible to describe our experiences in detail.

On behalf of the whole group, we would like to sincerely thank Mr. Pokorny who organized the trip, and Mr. Purvis who also helped with the organization and who chaperoned us during our stay in Paris.

Evelyn Lark and Peter Walsh.

INTERLUDE

Schreiber Campus students will be presenting a variety show, at 8:00 p.m., Thursday, April 13, at Schreiber and April 14 at Terrace Bay Campus.

The highlights of the show will be two plays, "The Little Red Schoolhouse", and "I Never Saw Another Butterfly". Music and songs will round out the evening.

"The Little Red Schoolhouse" presents a classroom of almost typical students whose reason for existence seems to be to thwart the learning process.

The situations are guaranteed to be fun for all.

"I Never Saw Another Butterfly" is set in a Nazi concentration camp. The children strive to keep that spark of life burning despite the hardships and heartaches they endure.
