New Structure - cont'd from page 1 .....

250 Authorities, Boards and Commissions into 17 new ministries. Related ministries are in turn grouped into three policy fields - justice, resource development, and social development.

Within the Resources Development policy field are six ministries with closely inter-related programs. Along with Natural Resources are the Ministries of Agriculture and Food, Environment, Industry and Tourism, Labour, Transportation and Communications.

Each Minister administers and develops policy for his ministry, and he participates in the policy-making process involving the other ministries in the policy field.

Within the policy field, policies are co-ordinated by a Provincial Secretary - a Cabinet Minister who is free of departmental responsibilities. The Provincial Secretary for Resources Development is the Honourable Bert Lawrence, and he is assisted by a Deputy Secretary, Dr. J.K. Reynolds.

The Ministry of Natural Resources brings together all the programs relating to the development of natural resources over which the Province has some jurisdiction.

The components of the new ministry are the former Departments of Lands & Forests and Mines and Northern Affairs, the Conservation Authorities

Branch from the Department of Environment, and the St. Lawrence Parks Commission and Historic Parks from the former Department of Tourism and Information, along with the Mining Commissioner, the Niagara Parks Commission and the Ontario Energy Board.

Planning and implementation of the ministry began with the designation of Walter Q. Macnee, Deputy Minister of Lands and Forests, on December 10, 1971, to be Deputy Minister of Natural Resources. The Honourable Leo Bernier, Minister of Mines and Northern Affairs, was named on February 2, 1972, to be Minister of Natural Resources.

J.L. Scott,

Northern Affairs Officer.
