MODERN MINING

Four Toronto-based companies supplied about 75 per cent of the world's mining geophysical equipment in 1970. With these modern instruments prospecting, for the most part, is no longer carried out by one or two-man teams. It is performed by mining company employees engaged in regional surveys followed by detailed, instrumental surveys and diamond-drilling.

PARK POLLUTION

This past summer a week-long, clean-up canoe trip in Algonquin Provincial Park yielded 16 bags of garbage: mostly cans, bottles, broken glass and plastics. Two huge gear wheels, each weighing over 200 pounds, were hauled ashore from the bottom of North Tea Lake. A log jam in the Amable du Fond River yielded a torn rainsuit, a broken paddle and a plastic container of gasoline.
