OMA OPPOSING LEGISLATION

The Ontario Medical Association has sided with the Ontario Teachers' Federation in opposing legislation restricting the right of teachers to resign from their jobs.

The OMA board of directors, acting on behalf of 12,000 physician members, passed a resolution Wednesday "deploring any legislation denying members of the Ontario Teachers' Federation and its affiliates the right to resign from their employment."

The resolution arose out of a discussion of Bill 274, introduced in the Ontario Legislature Monday by the Minister of Education.

OMA president Dr. D. Laurence Wilson of Kingston, who proposed the resolution, said the legislation appeared to be an unjustified restriction of civil rights. He said the services of teachers, although essential, are not vital to the public safety as are the services of police and fire fighters. "If the free movement of teachers in and out of employment can be restricted by legislation," he said, "no one in society is safe from arbitrary government control."

Dr. Wilson said his board was particularly critical of the retroactivity of the legislation, "which makes illegal, resignations submitted legally by teachers three months ago".

Taxes

It certainly is true - we don't keep much to ourselves after taxes.
