

TODAY'S CHILD

BY HELEN ALLEN

THE TORONTO SUN SYNDICATE

Neil, 9 years, is a handsome lad of Irish, English and Dutch descent. He has dark eyes, brown hair and olive skin. Tall and slender in build, he is in good health.

Neil is in Grade Four. He is at least average in intelligence. All through school he has done well, even when putting little effort into his studies.

He likes music and recently joined the junior choir at church. Camping was a happy summer experience for Neil. He likes games but until recently did not have much interest in sports. That, however, is beginning to develop. He is a good skater, having had skating lessons.

Perceptive, sensitive Neil is easily aware of other people's feelings and knows at once if he is being accepted or not. He understands his own feelings too and is able to talk about them. He has a good sense of humor and is often witty.

Neil needs a mother and father who are able to combine warmth and firmness, and who have the time, and the desire, to spend much time with their son and share activities with him. Because Neil craves and needs a great deal of attention, there should be no other children in his adoption home.

To inquire about adopting Neil, please write to Today's Child, Ministry of Community and Social Services, Box 888, Station K, Toronto M4P 2H2. For general adoption information, please contact your local Children's Aid Society.
